

AFL AUSKICK: The program successfully introduces girls and boys of all ages to the AFL game in a fun and safe environment while exposing the AFL brand and its stars.

- Refinement of programs specifically targeted at identifying, recruiting and nurturing potentially elite players.
- A promotion campaign to create greater awareness and interest in AFL in Queensland.

In 2001, the AFL will almost double its investment in the AFL game in Queensland and, with significant support from the Queensland Government, will commit $3.7 million for game development.

International AFL

Game Development is responsible for the management of international AFL programs. Although expanding the AFL game internationally is of secondary importance in comparison to the development of the game in Australia, there were some significant advances in 2000.

The AFL has formed an AFL international advisory committee which now integrates the work of both the AFL and the International Australian Football Council (IAFC).

The AFL will have four main thrusts to its international program in 2001:

- AFL introductory kit comprising footballs and videos on coaching and umpiring for countries that wish to introduce the AFL game into schools through a formal education program.
- Assistance in conducting senior competitions.
- Establishment of junior development programs in selected countries.
- Support for the conduct of International Cup in 2002.

In the area of development, the AFL provided significant financial support for programs in New Zealand, the United States and Papua-New Guinea. Support was provided also for the AFL game in the UK, Canada, Samoa and Denmark. In PNG, an AFL development officer undertook a three-month project to explore the potential for development and, in 2001, the AFL will work with the AFL PNG to establish a more comprehensive program.

Preparations for the International Cup, to be held in Melbourne in 2002, are under way. Invitations to participate have been sent to 12 countries, including Samoa, PNG, the US, Canada, UK and New Zealand.

Training

The development of the AFL game, particularly at the grassroots and club football level, depends primarily on the environment in which the game is presented and played.

Therefore the manner in which:

- the football clubs and their facilities are managed by club personnel,
- the football activities and games are presented and managed by coaches,
- the games are umpired,
- the players are supported by trainers and sports medicine personnel, are key elements in establishing a first class environment for the recruitment and retention of participants in the AFL game. In line with Australian Sports Commission education and industry vocational training programs, the accreditation of coaches and umpires is competency based.

Coach Education

A major achievement in coach education throughout 2000 was an agreement by all states and territories on the delivery, conduct and assessment methods for AFL-accredited coaching courses at Level One Auskick, Level One Youth/Senior and Level Two delivered by state bodies.

The number of coaches accredited at each level is indicated below:

• Level 1	2861 accreditations
• Level 2	212 accreditations
• Level 3	15 accreditations

Umpire Accreditation

Umpiring accreditation programs continue to provide umpires with the skills to manage games at all levels. These programs are important also in the process of promoting umpiring as well as retaining and recruiting umpires.

In 2000, the first re-accreditation of level two and level three umpires was conducted in most states, as well as the trialing of an "Umpire's Coach" course that provides training in the planning, conduct and reviewing of coaching programs, and equips trained personnel with most of the necessary assessor qualifications required by the new sports industry training package.

In 2000, David Johnson (WAFC) and Murray Bird (AFL Queensland) conducted umpire education programs in New Zealand and PNG respectively.

The number of umpires accredited in 2000 is indicated below:

*In the 1999 AFL Annual Report, total numbers for season 1999 were reported as 447,579, but further analysis of the reporting process has uncovered some anomalies in counting. In the 2000 national census, a more rigorous scrutiny of double counting of participants was made. There was also a reclassification of AFL promotional activities such as clinics and nine-a-side football, recognising these activities as being separate to more traditional football activities at club level. Where such activities were conducted over a period of fewer than six weeks, they were classified as promotional activities and not included in the overall number of participants.

Club Personnel Education

The professional development of volunteers who manage football clubs is essential in ensuring the ongoing development and conduct of the AFL game. The AFL, with significant financial support from Active Australia, has initiated the Club Development Project to identify the professional needs of club personnel and to put in place a national education program. In the first year of a three-year program, a comprehensive audit of club management has been undertaken. This will be revised through the use of focus groups with a view to preparing and piloting, in 2001, a range of education programs for club personnel. These programs are being developed in close consultation with state and territory football organisations.

Talent identification and development

The AFL, in co-operation with the state and territory football bodies, has in place a comprehensive and sophisticated program for the identification and development of talented players. As a result of a review of the Talented Player Pathway, an AFL Talent Task Force has found that with the exception of the developing AFL states of Queensland and New South Wales, the AFL game attracts the majority of the first choice athletes to the AFL game.

Talented player programs at the state and territory level link players into the national AIS/AFL Academy program conducted jointly by the AFL and the Australian Institute of Sport (AIS).

Talent review

In May 2000, a Talent Task Force was formed to review the Talented Player Pathway, established in 1996, to identify strategies and structures to ensure that the AFL game attracts, nurtures and retains athletes who make AFL their sport of first choice. The Talent Task Force met with representatives from each state and territory as well as AFL club football and recruiting managers. Formal submissions were received from state/territory football bodies and nine AFL clubs.

The overall findings of the review were as follows:

- the current structure and programs are generally meeting the needs of the AFL game.
- athletes are attracted to the AFL game as their first choice in the developed football states/territories, but special programs need to be developed and/or enhanced in the developing football states.
- the main planks of the talent identification system are:
  - AIS/AFL Academy program and its Intensive Training Centre (ITC) programs in co-operation with the states and territories.
  - the TAC Cup and other state under-age competitions.

The task force identified specific strategic programs for the states/territories in which the AFL game is at a development phase. In NSW/ACT, it recommended that the Future Stars and Sport Schools Program be enhanced, particularly in the greater Sydney area with the NSW/ACT Rams providing the elite program in NSW/ACT.

An enhanced competition program at the under-18 level was recommended for both the Northern Territory and Queensland in 2001 to assist with the development of the talented players. Football Victoria has given approval in 2001 for these teams to play additional games against TAC Cup teams and Victorian representative squads.

AFL National Championships

The AFL National Championships were conducted successfully in 2000. The AFL National Under-18 Championships were held in Melbourne in early July with Victoria Country the winner of Division One and NSW/ACT the winner of Division Two.

In the AFL National Under-16 Championships, conducted in Tasmania in late July, the winners were Victoria Country in Division One and NSW/ACT in Division Two. The AFL Under-18 National Championships continue to play a key role in the Talented Player Pathway. Of the 200 players who participated in the championships, 57 were listed by AFL clubs through the 2000 drafting process.

AIS/AFL Academy

Each year, the AIS/AFL Academy awards scholarships to 30 players following the AFL National Under-16 Championships. Scholarships are awarded on the basis of a player's potential to be drafted and his potential to play AFL football in the national AFL competition.

In addition to developing a player's football skills, the AIS/AFL Academy program includes a focus on education and vocation activities as well as the development of life skills for each individual.

In addition to attending the academy's three national camps, the scholarship-holders are members of the state ITC programs and spend one week at an AFL club during the pre-season period to experience the environment. In April 2000, the AIS/AFL Academy team travelled to Ireland and defeated Ireland 2-1 in the International Rules series.

*'OF THE 108 PLAYERS WHO ATTENDED
THE CAMP, 68 WERE LISTED BY THE

DRAFT IN 2000'*

AFL NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS: The identification and nurturing of talented players works successfully under a program developed by the AFL in 1996. The Talent Task Force Review in 2000 found that the system still achieved its objectives.

The graduates from the AIS/AFL Academy continue to be drafted by AFL clubs. In 2000, 16 former scholarship-holders were listed by AFL clubs for an overall total of 57 out of 76 players (67%) who were eligible for the draft.

Recruitment 2000

In 2000, a centralised program that utilises the vision from selected youth and state level games around Australia was implemented on behalf of AFL clubs. This program enabled AFL recruiting managers to accumulate data on potential recruits throughout the season.

In addition, a standardised player evaluation form has been developed to complement the above. This centralised program will be refined further in 2001 to identify other economies for AFL clubs.

AFL Draft Camp

In 2000, 108 players attended the AFL Draft Camp held at the Australian Institute of Sport in Canberra. At the camp, all players undertook a comprehensive and sophisticated battery of physical, psychological and psychomotor tests. In addition, all players were interviewed by a number of AFL clubs. Following the camp, a report on each player was provided to all AFL clubs to complement the club data. Of the 108 players who attended the camp, 68 were listed by the AFL clubs through the AFL Draft in 2000.

Increased payments to clubs, and game development investment grows

The AFL's operating result in the year 2000 showed a surplus of $58.2 million, an increase of $2.5 million (4.5 per cent) on the surplus of $55.7 million in 1998-99.

From this operating surplus the AFL makes both payments and distributions to Clubs, as well as to the States in the form of Development Grants.

In 2000, distributions and payments to AFL Clubs totalled $50.2 million, an increase of $8 million (19%) on 1999. Grants for game development were $15.2 million, an increase of $2 million (15%) on 1999.

Major Revenue & Expenditure items

Some of the major variations in income and expenditure items in 2000 were as follows:

- Revenue from Sponsorship/TV Rights/Radio Rights totalled $48.1 million, an increase of $5 million over 1999 (12 per cent).
- Match income totalled $27.5 million, an increase of $6.8 million over 1999 (32 per cent). This was due to the increased number of Ansett Cup matches, increased attendance at finals and increased revenue from the equalisation fund.
- Payment of $4 million to the AFL Players Association agreed as part of the Collective Bargaining Agreement, and represents the AFL's contribution to the Players' Welfare Fund (1999 - $3 million).
- Payments totalling $2.7 million for St Kilda and Hawthorn, as part of the underwriting of these clubs' move from Waverley Park. This underwriting covered membership, attendances, and advertising and promotional support. (1999 - $0.7 million).

- Payments of $0.9 million to the Kangaroos to assist with promotion of their games in Sydney in the 2000 season (1999 - $0.7 million).

Distributions and payments to clubs

Payments are made to the 16 AFL Clubs in the form of annual distributions as well as other payments.

(i) Annual Distributions

Annual distributions to AFL Clubs increased from $35.5 million in 1999 to $43.5 million in 2000, an increase of 23 per cent.

This $8 million increase was planned to fully fund the increase in the Total Player Payments, which increased from $68 million in 1999 to $76 million in 2000.

A summary of the distributions made to clubs from 1995 to 2001 is detailed below:

Distribution per club
	Per club $ '000	Total distribution ($ '000)	% Increase
1995	1,402	22,432
1996	1,480	23,680	5.6
1997	1,700	27,200	14.9
1998	1,870	29,920	10.0
1999	2,220	35,520	18.7
2000	2,720	43,520	22.5
2001	3,157	50,512	16.1

'IN 2000, DISTRIBUTIONS AND PAYMENTS TO AFL CLUBS TOTALLED $50.2 MILLION, AN INCREASE OF $8 MILLION (19%) ON 1999. GRANTS FOR GAME DEVELOPMENT WERE $15.2 MILLION, AN INCREASE OF $2 MILLION (15%) ON 1999'.

Other Payments

Other payments to clubs increased from $6.6 million in 1999 to $6.7 million in 2000. These payments were in the form of prizemoney, AFL membership Club Support packages and AFL Members' matchday contributions.

Game Development Grants

Game development grants were increased from $12.1 million in 1999 to $15.2 million in 2000, in line with the AFL's policy to grow the AFL game nationally, with significant investment growth in NSW, ACT and Queensland.

Financial Reporting

A number of changes to the AFL's reporting system have been made and will be made to reflect both the change in the AFL's structure and the requirement for better and more relevant information to be available to AFL management, the AFL Commission and the clubs.

A key challenge in 2001 is to design a new monthly reporting system that can be used by the Commission and the Executive of the AFL to measure both financial and non-financial indicators. This information can then be used to support and evaluate the AFL's strategies and business plans.

FAREWELLS

GREAT MEMORIES: Paul Salmon (left) finished his career in 2000 after 309 magnificent games with Essendon and Hawthorn. They were a few of the great players who ended their AFL careers in 2000.

With some fanfare and with grace and dignity, a significant number of the AFL's experienced brigade bowed out of the game at the highest level, either during or at the end of the 2000 season.

In terms of experience, former Essendon and Hawthorn star ruckman and forward Paul Salmon was the biggest name to depart. At 205 centimetres, he was the tallest player to bid farewell and was given a rousing send-off by both Essendon and Hawthorn players during their round 19 contest.

Salmon, whose career tally was 309 games (100 with the Hawks) was one of 13 notable premierships players to call it a day. Others included Gavin Brown, Gavin Croisica, Scott Russell and Damian Monkhorst, bringing to an end the last playing links to Collingwood's 1990 premiership success.

The game will be poorer for the loss of 1992 Brownlow Medallist Scott Wynd as the Western Bulldogs champion made an outstanding contribution.

Wynd was one of four former captains to announce their retirement, joining Brown, Barry Stoneham and Guy McKenna. These players, and others who retired at the end of 2000, have made significant sacrifices to achieve their best and have delighted fans with their skill and dedication. They will be missed greatly.

Trevor Coote

FORMER CLUB PRESIDENT

Trevor Coote, who died on March 14, 2000, aged 66, was president of the Hawthorn Football Club from 1988 to 1993. It was a successful era for the Hawks with premierships in 1988, 1989 and 1991 — a record he shared with Phil Ryan, who was president in the premiership years of 1971, 1976 and 1978. Coote was a member of the Hawthorn Confreres for a number of years and was elected to the board of management in 1973. He was also a long-time member and former president of the Hawthorn Football Club Social Club. Coote was made a Hawthorn life member in 1983.

Hugh Torney, PREMIERSHIP PLAYER

Former Essendon ruckman Hugh Torney died on February 10, 2000, aged 90. He played 173 games in some of Essendon's finest teams from 1933 to 1943. Torney had a keen understanding with Essendon champion rover Dick Reynolds and was honored with selection in Victorian state teams. Recruited from Patchewollock, in north-west Victoria, he played in Essendon's 1942 premiership side and in the beaten 1941 and 1943 Grand Final teams. He won Essendon's best and fairest award in 1940 and in the same year was second to joint Brownlow Medal winners Des Fothergill, of Collingwood, and Herb Matthews, of South Melbourne. After leaving Essendon, Torney played with Williamstown.

Jim Taylor SWANS RUCKMAN

Former South Melbourne ruckman Jim Taylor died in Queensland, aged 68, on April 18, 2000. He was one of the best big men in South's history, playing 153 games from 1949 to 1954 and 1956 to 1961, in the Ron Clegg, Bill Gunn, Fred Goldsmith, Gordon Lane, Bob Skilton era. Taylor twice won South's best and fairest award and was runner-up five times, he was fourth in the Brownlow Medal in 1957 and represented Victoria 13 times. As a schoolboy, he was a fine athlete and a particularly good high-jumper. Taylor also played League football in South Australia.

A. R. 'Jack' Jennings

LONG-TIME PRESIDENT

AFL and Geelong life member, A. R. 'Jack' Jennings died on June 9, 2000, aged 91. He was one of football's longest-serving officials, Geelong president from 1945 to 1970 and was as well known in Geelong as the town hall clock. He was a regular at Geelong matches from the 1925 Grand Final until well into the 1980s. In 1930, Jennings was a second 18 committeeman and in 1944, he was elected to the senior committee. He was a Geelong delegate on the Victorian Football League for many years and was a vice-president for six years. He was club president when Geelong won its last three premierships — in 1951, 1952 and 1963. The early 1950s were golden years for Geelong and Jennings and his colleagues were steering the ship from the boardroom. In 1970, when the president of the VFL, Sir Kenneth Luke, was ill, Jennings had the honor of introducing the Queen, Prince Phillip, Prince Charles and Princess Anne to the competing clubs, Richmond and Fitzroy, at the MCG.

Ron Casey, AO MBE SPORTS TELEVISION GIANT

Ron Casey, one of the giants of Australian sports television and a life member of the AFL and the North Melbourne Football Club, died on June 19, 2000, aged 72. Casey, the president of North Melbourne, was a legend in television and compere of the long-running World of Sport program on Channel 7. In a Sunday lunchtime ritual that spanned 29 years, he took sport into the living rooms of millions of Australians. Casey was also synonymous with the famous TV duo of Lou Richards and Jack Dyer and his love for football and the people in it never waned. He was a media leader in boxing and professional athletics and had a strong involvement in horse racing, both the gallops and harness racing. He made his name with radio station 3DB and rose to become general manager at Channel 7. He held several official positions in different sports, but his greatest love was the North Melbourne Kangaroos. He was a club board member from 1987, club president from 1991 until his death and a member of the Australian Football Hall of Fame (media section).

Graham Huggins

CLUB PRESIDENT

Graham Huggins, who died on July 14, 2000, aged 78, was president of St Kilda when it won its only premiership in 1966. Huggins and secretary Ian Drake were a powerful combination in the heady days at St Kilda in the 1960s and were behind many of the star recruiting deals. Huggins, an astute football politician, was elected to the St Kilda committee in 1954 and was president from 1959 until 1978. One of the biggest decisions he was involved in was the club's move from the Junction Oval in St Kilda to Moorabbin in 1965. The following year, St Kilda won its first flag. Huggins was also a powerful figure as St Kilda's delegate at the VFL board table, holding many titles including that of chairman of the permit and match arrangement committee. He was also on the ground management committee that played an important role in the building of the Waverley Park stadium. Huggins was honored with life membership of the VFL in 1956. He was also active in the development of the Sydney Swans in their pioneering days in the 1980s. During World War II, he was a pilot in the air force for four years.

John Lauritz AFL/HAWTHORN LIFE MEMBER

A leading administrator with the Victorian Country Football League and then the Hawthorn Football Club, John Lauritz died suddenly on March 5, 2000, aged 67. He was a life member of the VCFL, the Hawthorn Football Club and the AFL. He was a player, coach and official in country football and was president of the VCFL from 1976 to 1978. He moved from Swan Hill, in country Victoria, to Melbourne in 1982 to take over as chief executive of the Hawthorn Football Club. During his 13-year stay, Hawthorn won five premierships and was runner-up on another three occasions and won five pre-season premierships. The AFL appointed him centenary events manager in 1995-96 and he oversaw the many functions in the centenary year of 1996. Three days before his death, Lauritz attended the AFL's 2000 season launch in the Palladium Ballroom at Crown Casino.

Ray Gabelich

COLLINGWOOD RUCKMAN

Ray Gabelich died on July 18, 2000, aged 67, but his name will live on. He is a football immortal as a result of a spectacular, if uncomfortable, long run. In the 1964 Grand Final between Collingwood and Melbourne, 'Gabo' produced a brilliant run that put the Pies in front in the last quarter. He bounced the ball five times — and almost lost it three times — and kicked truly to put the Pies in front. Melbourne later snatched back the lead and won the premiership, but 'Gabo's run' will not be forgotten. He played 160 games from 1955 to 1960 and 1962 to 1966 after an apprenticeship at East Perth. He was a bear-like figure who captained the Magpies in 1964 and 1965, played in the 1958 premiership side and won the club's Copeland Trophy as the best and fairest player in 1960. Gabelich played his last League game in the losing 1966 Grand Final. He was honored with All-Australian status, represented WA in 1961, played football in Darwin and also played in the Australian Football game at the 1956 Olympic Games in Melbourne.

Maurie Gibb

PLAYER AND OFFICIAL

Maurie Gibb was first and foremost a gentleman and those who mixed with him over several decades at the MCG deemed it a pleasure. He was 86 when he died on August 5, 2000. Gibb was recruited from country Rosedale in Victoria and played 133 games with Melbourne from 1934 to 1943. The highlights were the premierships in 1940 and 1941 when he played on a half-forward flank. In 1935, he twice kicked nine goals in a game — against Geelong at Corio Oval and North Melbourne at Arden Street. That year he topped Melbourne's goalkicking with 59. For many years, he worked at the MCG with the Melbourne Cricket Club and football writers fondly remember him entering the press box late in games to announce "Gentlemen, the attendance" before chalking it on a board. He was appointed assistant secretary of the MCC in 1964 and worked closely with the secretary, former Australian Test cricket captain Ian Johnson. He retired from the MCC in 1979. Gibb also served on the Melbourne Football Club committee.

Alan Miller

SWANS COACH

Alan Miller, the often outspoken and controversial coach of South Melbourne in 1967 and 1968, died on September 9, 2000, aged 75. He was one of the few people to have coached at senior VFL/AFL level without ever having played League football. He coached the Swans' under-19s, missing a top-four finish only twice in 12 years and directing them to a premiership in 1956. When he coached the seniors, the stars of the club included captain Bob Skilton, Peter Bedford, John Rantall, Graeme John, John Heriot and John Sudholz. He will be remembered as an ideas man who was not afraid to try something new.

Maurice Johnson

BLUES CAPTAIN

Maurice 'Mocha' Johnson, a tough, outspoken Carlton follower who played 109 games from 1927 to 1936, died on May 30, 2000, aged 93. He started the 1936 season with Carlton, but after six games and a disagreement with the Carlton committee, he finished the season at South Melbourne, playing 19 games for the Swans in 1936 and 1937. Johnson, who was never afraid to speak his mind, was Carlton captain for part of 1933 and in 1934. He was in the first ruck with Charlie Davey in the Grand Final side that lost to Richmond in 1932 and he played alongside Laurie Nash, Bob Pratt and Herb Matthews in the 1936 Grand Final team that lost to Collingwood. Johnson represented Victoria in 1932 and 1934 and after his League career, he played and coached in Tasmania.

Ted Fletcher

HAWTHORN CAPTAIN

Ruckman Ted Fletcher, who captained Hawthorn during difficult times, died on May 13, 2000, aged 74. Fletcher joined Hawthorn from Port Melbourne in 1944 and played the last of his 129 games in 1954. He captained the side in 1953 and 1954 and on his retirement, was replaced as skipper by John Kennedy. Fletcher was Hawthorn's best and fairest in 1953 and in 1952 was an emergency for the Victorian state team. While Hawthorn struggled in the 1940s and part of the 1950s, it was players such as Fletcher, a policeman, who kept the club going.

Jack Williams

SWANS PLAYER

One of football's most colorful and best-known characters, Jack 'Basher' Williams died on May 16, 2000, aged 82. He was a South Melbourne legend and was one of several players reported during the 1945 'Bloodbath' Grand Final against Carlton. He was suspended for eight matches for adopting a fighting attitude to the umpire (field umpire Frank Spokes) and for another four games for abusing a goal umpire. The rugged defender played 61 games with South from 1939 to 1940 and 1942 to 1946 and in 1945 he represented Victoria against South Australia. Though Williams did not have a big tally of games, he was one of South's best-known players. At one stage, he was a fighter in the light heavyweight division. Former South great Bob Skilton summed up the feelings of all who knew Williams by calling him "a lovely bloke".

Alan Piper

BRISBANE ADMINISTRATOR

Former Brisbane president Alan Piper died on April 11, 2000, aged 55, after losing a four-year battle with cancer. He had stood down as president a few months earlier due to deteriorating health. Piper was a foundation member of the Brisbane board (appointed in December 1991) and was deputy chairman from 1991 to 1998. During that time, Brisbane merged with the Fitzroy Football Club (after the 1996 season) and became the Brisbane Lions. Piper became president in February 1999. He was a leading figure in the motor car industry in Brisbane and his business acumen was a tremendous asset to the football club. Piper was a Victorian state schoolboys' representative in cricket and football and an assistant secretary at the Hawthorn Football Club. He moved to Queensland in 1976.

2000 AFL ACHIEVERS, RESULTS & ATTENDANCES

ACHIEVERS

AFL Achievers are those players or teams who achieved the highest rewards the game has to offer during season 2000. The individual winners, and the Essendon team were shot, specifically for this report, by Allsport photographers, with Art Direction by Mick Russell.

ESSENDON

The saying 'A champion team will always beat a team of champions' always raised a scary question: What if a club possessed both qualities? In 2000, Essendon came close to answering that question. The Bombers won both the Ansett Australia Cup and the AFL premiership. The club won 24 out of 25 games and, all year, was a brilliant team to watch.

SHANE WOEWODIN

His desire to play AFL football was never in doubt. But he had to wait, and work, and earn the right. In 1997, the last place available on the Melbourne list became his when he was selected in the AFL's Pre-Season Draft. It was enough of an opportunity. He has not missed a senior game with the club since. That's 97 in succession. In 2000, he started to fill the awards cabinet. He won the Brownlow Medal, his club's best and fairest, represented Australia in Ireland and played in the AFL Grand Final.

PAUL HASLEBY

The accepted wisdom that dictates young players should be given time to develop didn't apply to him. His first year lifted expectations but no one thinks he's not capable of fulfilling them. He looks an old-fashioned footballer, but his play is, at this stage, a mile ahead of most of his generation. He played 21 games, won the Norwich Union AFL Rising Star and looks set to push Fremantle up the ladder.

ROBERT CIANFLONE • ALLSPORT

MATTHEW LLOYD is a humble hero. Lloyd's all-round game saw him claim the most kicks and marks for Essendon in 2000. He kicked a goal in every game, but played in defence on the odd occasion his coach demanded he do so. When the season ended, Lloyd had won the Coleman Medal, a premiership medal and had kicked 100 goals in a season. He was only 22.

JAMES HIRD This time last year when he contemplated what the future held for him, he must have dreamt dark dreams. Then, almost as quickly, felt the nagging doubts. Twelve months later, the dreams were sparkling – comprehensively. He had led Essendon in a record-breaking year, won the Norm Smith Medal, captained Essendon's premiership side, was named All-Australian, captained Australia's successful team in Ireland where he won the Jim Stynes Medal as best Australian in the series.

SEAN GARNSWORTHY - ALLSPORT

MARK MERCURI is not just all class. He possesses plenty of character too. He began the year winning the Michael Tuck Medal and finished it with a premiership. His cruising speed is very high, but when he unleashes the full range of his abilities he can turn a game in an instant.

KEVIN BARTLETT

Bartlett (left) was one of the game's best from the start to the finish of his 403 game playing career. Only one other man, Michael Tuck, has played more than 400 games of AFL football. Bartlett played a key role in five flags (1967, 1969, 1973, 1974, 1980) with the Tigers – every post-war flag Richmond has won. In 1980, aged 33, he won the Norm Smith Medal at the end of a dynamic finals series in which he booted 21 goals in three matches. He won five Richmond best and fairests, including three in premiership years – 1967, 1973 and 1974, captained the club in 1979, and kicked more than 50 goals in a season four times. Between 1988 and 1991 he coached the Tigers. He forced a change in the game's laws with his ability to bounce the ball to escape tacklers, or gain a free kick. Ironically he's now a member of the AFL Laws of the Game review panel.

WAYNE CAREY

Young captains bear a huge burden.

Only the greats survive. Kangaroos captain since 1993, and twice able to hold the premiership cup aloft, he has been the central figure on AFL grounds for close to a decade. He has shown himself as a character with an unyielding sense of purpose. For the fourth time he was named captain of the All-Australian team.

He topped 50 goals for the seventh time in his career with a tally of 69 in 2000.

KEVIN SHEEDY plots and plans. He overcomes myths and establishes his own pattern for success. In 2000, he led the Bombers on a record-breaking spree winning the Ansett Australia Cup, 24 out of 25 premiership season games, including the AFL premiership. He watched his team kick a record score for a final in the qualifying final, and four of his players reached All-Australian status.

MICHAEL COOPER • ALLSPORT

ALL-AUSTRALIAN TEAM

The AFL game is the ultimate team game - a game in which the accumulated talents of individuals, organised ideally by a great coaching panel, will overcome a similarly tuned and trained group. In the long lists of achievements a player might seek during a career, the list would start with a premiership and, in the dreaming time, could include a Brownlow. But for the great proportion of those who play the game at the highest level, a place in the All-Australian team is as good as it gets. This is the game's recognition of its best, in the positions they have made their own. A team of All-Australians and players selected specifically for the International Series against Ireland in Dublin won the series 2-0.

Brownlow Medal

West Australian Shane Woewodin became the sixth Melbourne player to win the Brownlow Medal with a two-vote win in a glittering evening at the Palladium at Crown Casino on August 28, 2000.

In a tight count, the Melbourne midfielder scored two votes in the final round to lift him clear of Western Bulldogs star Scott West, who was third two years earlier.

Woewodin, 24, had to put his celebrations on hold because five days later he was to play in the Grand Final against Essendon.

He has joined Ivor Warne-Smith (1926, 1928), Don Cordner (1946), Brian Wilson (1982), Peter Moore (1984) and Jim Stynes (1991) as a Melbourne medallist.

Woewodin played his first game with Melbourne in the opening round of 1997 and then played 93 straight on his way to the medal.

He was passed over in the 1995 and 1996 AFL National Drafts, but still had his sights set on playing in the AFL. He did pre-season training with Melbourne in the lead-up to 1997 and in the pre-season draft of that year, he was picked up with the last of Melbourne's three selections.

He has not looked back.

Woewodin polled in 11 of the 22 home and away games and his 24 votes included four best-on-ground three-votes.

"It's a great honor and a huge privilege. I thought I had no chance. Scotty West was my pick," an elated Woewodin told the crowd.

West again showed his consistency with his second placing and Adelaide's Andrew McLeod, who won Norm Smith Medals in 1997 and 1998, was third.

The medal favorite, Carlton's athletic all-rounder Anthony Koutoufides, finished fourth while second favorite, Collingwood captain Nathan Buckley, was equal fifth with Brett Ratten, of Carlton.

John Coleman Medal

Essendon full-forward Matthew Lloyd won the Coleman Medal for the first time last year after kicking 94 goals in the home and away series. It was the first time that the medal — named in honor of the late great Essendon full-forward John Coleman and instituted in 1981 — had been claimed by an Essendon player.

Lloyd, who played in all 22 home and away games, was 29 goals clear of Carlton's Lance Whitnall and Melbourne's Jeff Farmer on 65. Then came Wayne Carey (Kangaroos) on 62 and Alastair Lynch and Daniel Bradshaw (both Brisbane Lions) on 61 and 56 respectively.

Lloyd, 22, was selected at full-forward in the All-Australian side last year for the second successive year.

He had kicked at least one goal in every match and had managed nine against Fremantle in round 18 plus three bags of seven.

Lloyd has topped Essendon's goalkicking every year since 1997 and season 2000 provided him with his biggest total of 109, including the finals. He became the first Essendon player to kick 100 goals in a season since Geoff Blethyn in 1972.

Lloyd started his senior career with Essendon in 1995 after outstanding performances in junior football. He has played 106 games — eight more than Coleman — and has kicked 354 goals for an average of 3.34 per game.

Coleman, who played between 1949 and 1954, kicked 537 goals in 98 games for an average of 5.48 a game before a knee injury ended his spectacular career. At the end of last season, Carey had kicked the most goals of the current players with 636. Lloyd was 10th and working his way up the list.

The 1999 Coleman Medallist, the Eagles' Scott Cummings, missed most of the second half of the season due to injury and booted only 47 goals.

Norm Smith Medal

Essendon captain James Hird topped a marvellous comeback season with not only a premiership medallion, but a Norm Smith Medal as well. He was voted best on ground in the Grand Final against Melbourne after producing a typical opposition-crushing performance.

The Norm Smith Medal will sit nicely beside his 1996 Brownlow Medal – both being lasting mementos of two highpoints in an outstanding career.

In 1999, Hird did not play after round two because of stress fractures in his feet, an injury that appeared to threaten his career. But he came back in 2000 and despite finger and back/buttock injuries that cost him five games, was a shining light in the Essendon attack.

He led the hot favorites into the Grand Final and later stood on the dais with the premiership cup. Hird's father, Alan, and his grandfather, also Alan, both played with Essendon and Alan senior was a member of Essendon's 1942 premiership side.

For Hird junior, the 2000 premiership was his second at Essendon as he also played in the victorious 1993 line-up.

Hird is the fourth Essendon player to win the Norm Smith Medal, following in the footsteps of Bill Duckworth (1984), Simon Madden (1985) and Michael Long (1993).

The medal was struck in 1979 and honors the late Norm Smith, the great Melbourne player and premiership coach. Smith played in four premiership sides with Melbourne and coached the club to six flags in the 1950s and 1960s.

On most occasions, the medal winner has come from the winning side, with the only exceptions being Maurice Rioli (Richmond, 1982) and Gary Ablett (Geelong, 1989).

Norwich Union AFL Rising Star

Brilliant young Fremantle recruit Paul Hasleby didn't miss a match in 2000 and scored a narrow three-vote win in the Norwich Union AFL Rising Star award. There were 22 nominees (one for each of the home and away rounds) and nine players attracted votes.

Hasleby, the eighth player and first Fremantle player to win the award, was the sixth winner from a non-Victorian club.

Hasleby won a Norwich Union investment portfolio valued at $20,000, plus a magnificent handcrafted perpetual trophy.

A total of 213 players were eligible for the award in 2000.

To be eligible, a player had to be aged under 21 on or before December 31, 1999, must not have played more than 10 senior games (for premiership points/finals) at the start of 2000 and must not have been suspended by the AFL or a state league tribunal during the 2000 premiership season.

The judges were Rod Austin, Kevin Bartlett, Andrew Demetriou, Gerard Healy, Neil Kerley, Robert Walls and Chris Mainwaring and Wayne Jackson was the non-voting chairman.

Bartlett swells Richmond's stocks in Legend class

Former Richmond rover Kevin Bartlett, one of only two VFL/AFL players to reach 400 games, was elevated to Legend status in the Australian Football Hall of Fame on May 12, 2000.

Seven other football greats — David Dench (North Melbourne), the late Des Fothergill (Collingwood), Ross Glendinning (North Melbourne/West Coast Eagles), Bill Goggin (Geelong), Gerard Healy (Melbourne/Sydney), Geoff Southby (Carlton) and Tim Watson (Essendon) — were inducted into the Hall of Fame and the late Geoff Christian, the West Australian newspaper's chief football writer for 28 years, was inducted into the media section.

The presentations were made at a gala evening at the Plaza Ballroom in Collins Street, Melbourne.

Hall of Fame Legend

Kevin Bartlett (born March 3, 1947)

Kevin Bartlett played 403 games with Richmond from 1965 to 1983. Only former Hawthorn captain Michael Tuck has played more League games with a total of 426. Bartlett was one of football's greatest rovers and a brilliant goalkicker, with a career aggregate of 778. Of the 16 Legends, three have worn the Richmond colors, the others being Jack Dyer and Ian Stewart. Bartlett, who won five Richmond best and fairest awards and played in the Tigers' 1967, 1969, 1973, 1974 and 1980 premiership sides, rose to the occasion in finals. He had an unforgettable finals series in 1980, kicking six goals in the qualifying final against Carlton, eight in the second semi-final against Geelong and seven in the Grand Final against Collingwood. Fittingly, he won the Norm Smith Medal as best player on the ground in the Grand Final that year. As a player, he is remembered for his light frame, uncanny anticipation, ability to win large numbers of kicks and his freak goalkicking skills. Bartlett later coached Richmond and is still closely associated with football on radio and television as a presenter.

Hall of Fame Inductees

David Dench (born August 23, 1951):

An outstanding, attacking full-back who joined North Melbourne when the club was struggling, but was still on hand to play a major part in the upsurge to premiership status in the 1970s. Dench was recruited from West Coburg and made his senior debut with the Kangaroos in 1969. He went on to play 275 games, including 25 finals, until his retirement in 1984. He was full-back in the Kangaroos' first premiership side in 1975 and acting captain of the 1977 premiership team. He also played in losing Grand Final teams in 1974 and 1976 and won the club best and fairest award in 1971, 1976, 1977 and 1981. In 1972, aged 20, he captained the club.

Des Fothergill (born July 15, 1920; died March 16, 1996): A superb goalkicking half-forward/rover who won three best and fairest awards in his first four years with Collingwood. Fothergill broke into the senior side before his 17th birthday and played 111 games and kicked 337 goals from 1937 to 1940 and 1945 to 1947. He tied for the 1940 Brownlow Medal with South Melbourne's Herb Matthews on 32 votes and even after an exhaustive countback, the pair could not be separated. At the time, each received a replica of the medal, but in 1989, after the countback system had been dropped, Fothergill and Matthews each received a 'real' Brownlow Medal. Fothergill also played with Williamstown in the VFA and won the Recorder Cup as best player. He also excelled at cricket.

Ross Glendinning (born September 17, 1956):

An outstanding key position player for North Melbourne and the West Coast Eagles. Glendinning played 190 games and kicked 214 goals with the Kangaroos from 1978 to 1986 and won the Brownlow Medal in 1983. When the Eagles assembled their first list in the then VFL in 1987, Glendinning was the foundation captain and stayed in that position until his retirement at the end of the 1988 season. He played 40 games and kicked 111 goals for the West Australian club for a League total of 230 games and 325 goals. Glendinning is also remembered as the leader of the Eagles' first finals side which met Melbourne in an elimination final in 1988. He did not play in a premiership side, but in 1978 — his first season at North — he was a member of the Grand Final team that lost to Hawthorn. Glendinning was at home at centre half-back and centre half-forward and also produced some telling performances at full-forward. He won two North Melbourne best and fairest awards and captained WA in State of Origin football.

Bill Goggin (born January 4, 1941):

A champion rover and 'half' of Geelong's famed ruck/rover partnership with Graham 'Polly' Farmer. Farmer, the master ruckman, and small man Goggin, with his amazing speed and deadly accurate kicking, caused major headaches for opposition sides in the 1960s. Goggin started in the VFL in 1958 and retired in 1971 after 248 games and 279 goals. He was a member of Geelong's last premiership side in 1963 and played in the Grand Final team that lost to Richmond in 1967. He won Geelong's best and fairest award in 1967 and 1970, was captain from 1968 to 1971 and played 14 games for Victoria. After retiring as a player, he coached Footscray from 1976 to 1978 and Geelong from 1980 to 1982. He also coached Victoria in State of Origin football from 1987 to 1993.

Gerard Healy (born March 1, 1961):

A classy forward/on-baller who started his League career with Melbourne in 1979 and finished it with the Sydney Swans in 1990. Healy played 130 games and kicked 189 goals for Melbourne (1979-85) and played 81 games and kicked 87 goals for Sydney (1986-90). He did not play in a premiership team, or even a Grand Final, but there were other lasting achievements. While not a traditional full-forward, he kicked 77 goals for Melbourne in 1982, and in 1984, he won the club's best and fairest award. With Sydney, he won best and fairest awards in 1986, 1987 and 1988, plus the Brownlow Medal in 1988. While the Swans were still trying to establish themselves in Sydney, it was Healy and another of its Brownlow Medallists, Greg Williams, who helped give the club tremendous impetus.

Geoff Southby (born October 27, 1950):

A wonderful full-back for Carlton who played 268 games — the sixth biggest tally in the club's history — between 1971 and 1984. Southby was a standout from the start, underlined by club best and fairest awards in his first two seasons and selection in the Victorian side in his first season. He was recruited from Sandhurst, in the Bendigo League, and played in Carlton's premiership sides in 1972 and 1979. Throughout his long career, he was noted for his fair play and sportsmanship. He could mark or punch, stay back or attack and his decision-making was usually impeccable. Some say that when he was concussed in the 1973 Grand Final and could not return after half-time, the Blues' chances of winning the premiership evaporated. Southby was Carlton's vice-captain from 1981 to 1983 and a Victorian representative 16 times.

Tim Watson (born July 13, 1961):

One of the youngest players in VFL/AFL history, making his debut in 1977 at the age of 15 years and 305 days. Only Keith Bromage (Collingwood, 15 years, 287 days) and Albert Collier (Collingwood, 15 years, 297 days) were younger on debut. Watson developed into a top-class all-rounder, playing 307 games and kicking 335 goals for Essendon from 1977 to 1991 and 1993 to 1994. He was captain from 1989 to 1991, played in premiership sides in 1984, 1984 and 1993 and won club best and fairest awards in 1980, 1985, 1988 and 1989. He was equal third in the 1989 Brownlow Medal count. Despite his youth when he first arrived in Melbourne from Dimboola, Watson quickly showed he could mix it with the men. He could tear through a pack, defend stoutly or kick telling goals. He retired after the 1991 season, but found the hunger again and returned for one more premiership in 1993. He coached St Kilda from 1999 to 2000.

Geoff Christian

A long-time sports writer with an emphasis on football, Christian was inducted posthumously into the media section of the Australian Football Hall of Fame. He died in Perth in November 1998, aged 62. He wrote football for the West Australian newspaper for 33 years and was its chief football writer for 27 years. He retired in 1987. Christian had a great passion for sport and his love and support of football in WA never waned, even when the state side was taking a beating from the Victorians. He also had a close affinity with the West Coast Eagles and wrote Soaring, an excellent book on the history of the club. Christian was also a fine athlete and in his younger days was the WA sprint champion over 100 and 220 yards. He was a Hall of Fame selector.

AFL rewards three dedicated servants of football

The AFL Commission approved Life Membership for three former players and long-serving administrators in 2000. Each had been recommended to receive Life Membership by the Life Membership Recommendation Committee, which comprises former AFL Commission chairman John Kennedy, AFL General Manager-Football Operations Andrew Demetriou and Herald Sun football writer and commentator Mike Sheahan.

Greg Sewell

Has had a long-time association with the Essendon Football Club as a player, coach, committeeman, president and trustee of the club's Hall of Fame. He was an excellent back pocket, wingman and half-forward and played 171 games from 1952 to 1961 and represented Victoria in 1957. He then became captain-coach of Kyneton from 1962 to 1964 before returning to Essendon as assistant and reserves coach from 1965 to 1968. Sewell joined Essendon's committee in 1969 and stayed until 1987. From 1981, he was president and while in the chair Essendon won back-to-back premierships in 1984 and 1985. He has since served the club as a trustee of its Hall of Fame.

Ron Richards

A member of a famous football family which embraces the Pannam clan. Charlie Pannam senior (Richards' grandfather) was a star for Collingwood in its early years in the VFL, Charlie's sons, Albert and Charlie junior, were top players of their day and his daughter, Irene, produced Lou and Ron Richards. Ron joins Lou as an AFL Life Member following a long contribution to Collingwood. He played 145 games for the Magpies from 1946 to 1956, was a member of the 1953 premiership side, and after a successful stint as coach of East Hawthorn, returned to Collingwood as under-19s coach in 1964. He held that post until 1970, then became the club's assistant coach from 1971 to 1981. He was a board member in 1982 and from 1992 to 1997 and has served as chairman of selectors and also contributed as a coterie member of club.

Bob Hammond

Made his name in South Australia as a leading player with the North Adelaide and Norwood football clubs. He also made his mark in the AFL as the foundation president of the Adelaide Crows, a post he held from 1991 to 2000. Played 234 games with North Adelaide from 1960 to 1973 and 14 with Norwood in 1974 and 1975. He coached Norwood to two premierships in 1975 and 1978, was a SA state selector and coach. For part of 1984 Hammond was a stand-in coach for the Sydney Swans. He served on the Norwood board, is a Life Member of the North Adelaide, Norwood and Adelaide Crows clubs and a Life Member of the SANFL.

Jack Titus Award

Andy Angwin

Andy Angwin, 81, has been a familiar face at Hawthorn's Glenferrie Oval since joining the club as a player from Port Melbourne in 1938. He played 75 games until 1944 and was a Victorian representative, winner of the club best and fairest award in 1940 and runner-up in 1941 and 1942. He was the first president of the Past Players' Committee in 1962 and has since remained on the committee. In 1975 he was appointed the club's head property steward, a position he still holds. During that period Hawthorn has won seven premierships. He still washes the players' guernseys and is ably assisted by his wife Yvonne with repairs to the players' gear. In 1971, a premiership year, he was awarded Life Membership of the club. Angwin has also been the Victorian property steward on several occasions and was the first player to cross to the VFL from the VFA without a clearance.

The late Jack Titus was a champion Richmond forward who kicked 970 goals from 1926 to 1943. He played 294 games and for many years held the consecutive games record with 204. Titus was also a committeeman and senior coach at Richmond. The award is presented annually in recognition of outstanding service to football.

So close to a perfect 22

Essendon's 2000 premiership season was littered with broken records and shattered opponents. The Bombers raised the bar to a new level with a year to remember, apart from one small glitch against the Western Bulldogs in round 21.

The final result was 24 wins from 25 games (the most games won in a season); 20 wins in succession (the most in a season); the highest finals score ever – 31.12 (198) against the Kangaroos; the best ever start to a season (20-0); most consecutive weeks on top of the ladder (29 and still counting) and a record-equalling 16th premiership.

It was the last statistic that brought the biggest smile to the faces of Essendon players, coaching staff, officials and fans after the disappointment of bowing out in 1999, courtesy of a one-point preliminary final loss to Carlton.

The Bombers were on a mission from day one in 2000. They powered through the Ansett Cup and continued full pelt through the premiership season, with the only hiccup being the loss to the Bulldogs.

By Grand Final day, when Essendon came up against a youthful Melbourne combination, the result was about as inevitable as the sun setting in the west. The Bombers were not about to waste another golden opportunity.

The Demons, like the Bombers, had lost only one game since round 13. They had pushed Essendon to 13 points in round nine and, importantly, they had nothing to lose.

In the end, despite all the anticipation, talent and experience won out. Essendon, meticulous and almost fanatical in its preparation, blew Melbourne away. The final margin was 60 points – 19.21 (135) to 11.9 (75).

Only the Bombers' inaccuracy in the first half had kept the margin to 41 points at the long break. For the impartial supporter, the memorable moments had been few and far between. Michael Long had collided with Troy Simmonds late in the second quarter, knocking out the youngster and quelling the crowd of 96,249.

ON A MISSION: With work still to be done earlier in the season, the Essendon players were focused on the job at hand.

Bomber captain James Hird had kicked the first goal and was leading with the poise and class that his reputation had been built on. Teammates Justin Blumfield and Dean Solomon were explosive across the midfield. Blake Caracella was finding space and, crucially, converting opportunities into goals. Paul Barnard had snagged two quick goals after coming on the ground just before half-time to destroy the illusion that the Demons were within praying distance.

For Melbourne, Jeff White was playing an inspired game in the middle, giving his teammates first opportunity to use the ball. Skipper David Neitz was battling furiously, as was Stephen Powell. Travis Johnstone had given the team a spark when he arrived on the ground and on the backline, Anthony Ingerson, Peter Walsh and Matthew Collins were under siege, attempting to repel attack after attack. Melbourne's attempts to clear the ball out of defence after an Essendon behind were enjoying little success.

In the second half, the Bombers found their target and quickly extended their lead. Melbourne fought out the game, but realistically, 10 goals was about the margin that separated the two sides in skill. It wasn't a case of one side capitulating, but a clear example of the winner excelling.

With its 16th premiership in the bag, Essendon joined Carlton as the AFL's most successful club. Coach Kevin Sheedy took his personal tally to four flags and Hird won the Norm Smith Medal.

Hird spoke for his whole team after the game when he said: "It's the most special football moment I've ever had." He led his teammates to the centre circle where the cup was duly placed. They joined arms and belted out the club song one more time with gusto. Mission completed.

Essendon sounds warning with a clean sweep

The Ansett Australia Cup was played as a round-robin format for the first time in 2000, with the clubs divided into four groups with games played in Melbourne, Cairns, Darwin, Wellington (New Zealand), Adelaide, Perth, Hobart and Canberra.

The convincing champion after five straight wins was Essendon, which recorded a 41-point victory over the Kangaroos at the MCG.

The four groups were ...

Group one: Brisbane Lions, Sydney, Kangaroos, Richmond.

Group two: Port Adelaide, Collingwood, Carlton, Fremantle.

Group three: Adelaide, Melbourne, Geelong, St Kilda.

Group four: Hawthorn, Western Bulldogs, West Coast Eagles, Essendon.

Clubs in each group played each other once and group winners progressed to the semi-finals. They were: Kangaroos (three wins from three games), Carlton (two wins), Melbourne (two wins) and Essendon (three wins).

In the semi-finals, the Kangaroos beat Carlton and Essendon was too good for Melbourne.

The first game of the series was between Carlton and Collingwood and dubbed the Millennium Challenge. It was taken out of round three and played at the MCG on New Year's Eve, 1999.

A feature of Carlton's win was the 12 goals kicked by little-known forward Brendan Fevola. The previous best pre-season bag was 10.

A round three game was scheduled for Shell Stadium between Geelong and Melbourne, but a burst water main flooded a section of the ground before the match. The game was relocated to Waverley Park and played two days later. Geelong won.

Other highlights of the series were Mark Mercuri's brilliant play in the grand final to secure the Michael Tuck Medal, the 24 goals kicked by Kangaroos skipper Wayne Carey in the four games leading up to the grand final and the reappearance of several players after serious injury. The most significant return was that of Essendon captain James Hird.

Essendon was awesome in the grand final and landed its first pre-season series premiership since 1994 and a cheque for $125,000. Runners-up, the Kangaroos, won $95,000.

The series started (with the exception of the Millennium Challenge) on January 28 and concluded at the MCG on February 26.

Eleven players make their All-Australian debuts

Eleven players were selected in the All-Australian team for the first time in 2000 — and only five from the 1999 side retained their positions.

The new faces were Darren Gaspar and Andrew Kellaway (Richmond), Dustin Fletcher and Damien Hardwick (Essendon), Simon Goodwin (Adelaide), Scott Camporeale, Brett Ratten and Lance Whitnall (Carlton), Steven King (Geelong), Brent Harvey (Kangaroos) and Jeff Farmer (Melbourne).

The five who held their places were Nathan Buckley (Collingwood), Matthew Lloyd (Essendon), Wayne Carey (Kangaroos), Brad Johnson (Western Bulldogs) and Andrew McKay (Carlton).

Carey was captain again — an honor he also enjoyed in 1993, 1998 and 1999. Collingwood on-baller Nathan Buckley was selected for the fifth successive year, this time as first rover, and was named vice-captain. In previous years, he has been named at half-back, on the wing and in the centre.

Essendon might have had the most wins in 2000, but arch rival Carlton managed more representatives in the side, which was announced at a gala evening in the Grand Ballroom, Hotel Sofitel, Melbourne, on August 7.

Andrew McKay, Scott Camporeale, Brett Ratten, Anthony Koutoufides and Lance Whitnall made it for the Blues, while Essendon had one fewer with Damien Hardwick, Dustin Fletcher, James Hird and Matthew Lloyd.

Finalists the Brisbane Lions (sixth) and Hawthorn (eighth) were not represented in the side and neither were St Kilda, the West Coast Eagles and Fremantle.

It was the first time the Eagles were without a representative since joining the competition in 1987.

After being in every national team since 1994, St Kilda on-baller Robert Harvey, who was sidelined for six games last season due to injury, missed selection.

Two players who were particularly happy with selection were Richmond defender

Andrew Kellaway, who in earlier days had to battle for recognition, and Melbourne forward Jeff Farmer, who had finished the 1999 season out of the senior side.

It was a mixed year for the Kellaway brothers. Older brother Duncan, the more established of the pair, was hit by a knee injury and played only one game in the second half of the season, while Andrew didn't miss a game. He once played in Duncan's shadow, but no longer, and his selection is a great victory for perseverance.

Farmer fell out of favor with selectors late in 1999 and faced a serious challenge in 2000. He was a big winner, thrilling the Melbourne fans and ending the season with 76 goals.

Richmond centre half-back Darren Gaspar has the distinction of being the first No. 1 AFL National Draft selection to win an All-Australian berth since the draft started in 1986. Gaspar was selected by Sydney in 1993.

Brett Ratten has been a powerhouse at Carlton for years and deserved his selection in the centre in his debut year in the All-Australian side. Teammate Scott Camporeale also had an outstanding year for the Blues and his selection was also expected.

A lower-profile player, but one who is building an impressive career with Adelaide, is Simon Goodwin. He had an excellent season in defence and was selected at half-back.

Goodwin, 23, has played 72 games with the Crows and was a member of the 1997 and 1998 premiership sides. A teammate, Andrew McLeod, also played in both premiership sides and was selected in the All-Australian team for the second time after making his debut in 1998.

Geelong ruckman Steven King beat a strong group for the ruck berth. For a long time his name was in the "potential" category, but presented with added responsibilities in 2000, he rose to the challenge and also impressed the national selectors.

Australia breaks through to silence the Irish

The Australian team headed off to Ireland in 2000 for the third series in four-year Coca-Cola AFL International Rules Series. It had no points in the bank as it left having lost two series in succession. Ireland had won on aggregate points in 1998, and prevailed again in Australia in 1999, despite huge support for the Aussies from big crowds at the MCG and Football Park.

In the first Test at Croke Park, Australia was under pressure early. If the numbers on the scoreboard one quarter into the first Test -- Ireland 12, Australia 7 -- were unpalatable ... the numbers at half-time -- Ireland 28, Australia 19 -- were even less tempting.

But the Australians, against the odds, turned it around. They maintained their running and started to handle the ball with more precision. The bench, with coach Dermott Brereton at the helm, was steering a better course.

The Australians piled on 36 points to Ireland's 19 in the second half to storm to an eight-point win.

The Irish, however, had to win the next Test by at least eight points to retain the trophy. They had reasons to feel confident they could. The All-Ireland replay between Galway and Kerry the day before the first Test had kept half a dozen of Ireland's best team on the sidelines for that game.

Significant improvement could therefore be expected once they returned. The Australians had a week to add depth to their ball-handling skills; Brereton, with help from chairman of selectors Gerard Healy plus Robert Walls, Jim Stynes, Graham Cornes and Robert Dipierdomenico, had time to put a winning strategy in place.

Before 57,289 fans, the Australians were 14 points clear at the first change and 28 clear at half-time -- courtesy of crowd-stirring goals to Michael O'Loughlin and Justin Leppitsch. The Australians' pace, fitness and ball handling skills were proving unbeatable. They won by 17 points to secure the series.

James Hird led from the front to win the Jim Stynes Medal after Blake Caracella was voted best on ground in the first Test and Andrew Kellaway best on ground in the second. Hird's consistent performances across both games saw him add the medal to his collection of football honors.

The medal was created in 1998 in recognition of Stynes' record-breaking consecutive games performance with Melbourne. Stynes was recruited from Ireland to play for Melbourne in the mid-1980s. Goalkeeper Cormac Sullivan was player of the series for Ireland.

In the International Rules Series there are 15 players from each side on the ground and five on the interchange benches.

A goal (six points) is scored when the ball is driven between the goal posts and under the crossbar. An over (three points) results when the ball is driven between the goal posts and over the crossbar and a point is scored when the ball is driven between the goal and behind posts.

Players can be tackled, but only between the shoulders and hips and cannot be slung, and a player has to be standing or running to gather the loose ball.

INTERNATIONAL: All-Australian Western Bulldog Brad Johnson had the pleasure of scoring an over in the first Test at Croke Park.

Lions, Bulldogs lead the way in attendance increases

While AFL premiership season attendances dipped ever so slightly in 2000, almost half the competition's 16 clubs recorded significant gains in crowd figures. The two biggest improvers, in terms of attendances, were the Western Bulldogs (up 27.26 per cent on their 1999 figure) and the Brisbane Lions (up 25.2 per cent).

The Lions benefited from increased capacity at the Gabba while the Bulldogs made the most of their shift from Optus Oval to Colonial Stadium. In 1999, the Bulldogs drew an average crowd of 24,023, but that increased markedly in 2000 to 30,572.

Other clubs to attract bigger attendances in 2000 were Collingwood (495,134 fans in total, average crowd 45,012, up 15.04 per cent), Melbourne (413,153 fans, average crowd 37,559, up 17.54 per cent), Geelong (305,014 fans, average 27,729, up 11.63 per cent), Richmond (484,132 fans, average 44,012, up 8.58 per cent) and the West Coast Eagles (364,500 fans, average 33,136, up 7.35 per cent).

The 2000 premier, Essendon, was the best-supported club, attracting 531,879 fans to its home and away games. That figure was down 15.63 per cent on 1999 when the Bombers drew 630,399 fans, but the move from the MCG to Colonial Stadium best explains that drop. There were also slight drops in average crowds in Adelaide and Perth, although it should be noted that neither city was represented in the finals.

Despite some early teething problems at Colonial Stadium, the AFL's newest venue attracted an average crowd of 30,524, making it the third most popular venue behind the MCG (46,141) and Football Park (32,424).

In total, 5,740,811 fans attended AFL home and away matches in 2000, a small decrease on the 1999 figure of 5,771,579. The average AFL crowd in 2000 was 32,618, slightly down from 32,793 in 1999.

Principal activities

The principal activities of the consolidated entity during the course of the financial year have been to promote, control, manage and encourage Australian Football.

There were no significant changes in the nature of the activities of the consolidated entity during the year.

Review and results of operations

The operating loss of the AFL and its controlled entities (which includes the results of the AFL (NSW/ACT) Commission Ltd and the AFL Queensland Ltd) amounted to $8.063 million compared with an operating profit of $1.585 million in 1999, which is after distributions to clubs of $43.520 million (1999 $35.520 million).

There were many highlights during the year including:

AFL football remains as popular as ever, a fact highlighted by attendance figures during the 2000 Coca-Cola premiership season. A total of 5,740,811 fans went through the turnstiles in 2000, a drop of just 0.5 per cent from the 1999 premiership season. The Ansett Australia Cup attracted 325,736 fans (up 18.9 per cent) while 566,562 fans attended the Coca-Cola finals series (up 20 per cent). In total, 6,633,109 fans attended games (Ansett Australia Cup, premiership season and finals) in 2000 compared with 6,543,609 in 1999.

Club membership remained high but did not quite reach the record levels of 1999. The 2000 figure of 438,504 was fractionally down on the 1999 figure (441,711), but still showed that supporters were well aware of the benefits of club membership. Geelong, Brisbane and Essendon recorded the biggest membership increases.

Essendon won its 16th AFL premiership and established many records.

Colonial Stadium hosted its first AFL game on March 9. The average crowd at Colonial Stadium was 30,524.

Television broadcasts of AFL matches attracted even bigger audiences in 2000. Between five and six million people regularly watched telecasts on the Seven Network each weekend.

Participation levels in Australian Football remain high with 391,782 players involved at various levels including Auskick, club (junior and senior), veterans' and women's competitions. High levels of participation are fundamental to the AFL's game development strategy.

The AFL invested more than $15 million in national game development programs during 2000. That funding included the second year of a major development strategy for NSW and the ACT and the establishment of an independent governing body – AFL Queensland – to grow the AFL game from grassroots upwards throughout Queensland.

Discussion and analysis of the Profit and Loss Statement

Consolidated revenue increased by $3.5 million to $112.6 million. The major reasons for this increase include:

- an increase in finals revenue due to increased attendances;
- an increase in membership income which includes the fees paid by Channel 7 and Stadium Operations Limited for the rights to sell Medallion Club Membership;
- an increase in sponsorship income; and
- an increase in the levy per adult at AFL matches which increased from $1.10/$1.20 per person to $1.50 per person.

The consolidated operating loss was $8.1 million which compares with an operating profit of $1.6 million in 1999.

There were two main areas of increased expenditure which contributed to this result:

- an increase in distributions to clubs totalling $8 million; and
- an increase in grants to state football bodies totalling $2 million.

The profit and loss statement is to be read in conjunction with the discussion and analysis above and the notes to the financial statements set out on pages 119-120.

The balance sheet is to be read in conjunction with the discussion and analysis below and the notes to the financial statements set out on pages 119-120.

Discussion and analysis of the Balance Sheet

The consolidated entity's total assets increased by $3.7 million to $75.5 million.

This increase in total assets principally comprises:

- an increase in Trade Debtors of $3.5 million resulting primarily from amounts owing from Stadium Operations Limited and the Clubs for matches played at Colonial Stadium as well as Final Series income; and

The consolidated entity's total liabilities increased by $11.7 million to $29.8 million over the year.

The increase in total liabilities principally comprises:

- an increase in prepaid income of $6 million which represents the fees paid by Channel 7 and Stadium Operations Limited for the rights to sell Medallion Club membership; and
- borrowings increased by $6.3 million. This was sourced through both a Commercial Bill Facility as well as a bank overdraft facility.

Non-current assets (including Land held for resale):

On 21 February 2000 the last AFL game was played at Waverley Park. At that date, the Land and Buildings at Waverley were available for sale and accordingly were re-classified to Land held for resale. Since that date certain development costs have been incurred as a result of preparing the site for sale.

The value transferred from Property, Plant and Equipment represented the Land and Buildings at Directors Valuation, less current year's depreciation, based on a report prepared by Arthur Andersen Real Estate Services Group in July 1998 which defined the Waverley Park disposal options.

In preparing the report various disposal options available to the AFL were considered in determining how best to maximise the return from Waverley Park. The returns of the sale alternatives range from $35 million to $85 million.

During the year, Heritage Victoria recorded Waverley Park in the Victorian Heritage Register in line with a Statement of Cultural Heritage Significance for historical and social reasons.

Whilst this statement remains in existence any future development will need to be in sympathy with the Heritage Victoria classification.

The Commission are of the opinion that Waverley Park will be developed in line with all regulatory and other requirements and that values within the range of the July 1998 report continue to provide a reasonable estimate of recoverable amount.

The AFL Commission has confirmed its decision to sell Waverley Park and believes that it will realise at least its carrying value and accordingly has recorded the Waverley Park land and buildings as Land held for resale at this current net book value.
