

GAME DEVELOPMENT

ROSS SMITH

THE AFL Game Development Department, led by General Manager Ross Smith, is responsible for developing participation and talent in all states and territories, starting with the AFL Auskick program, and working through Community Club football and Coach and Umpire Education, to the AFL's Talented Player Pathway.

FAR AND WIDE: The AFL's game development stretches to all parts of Australia, including Uluru.

GROWING TALENT AND PARTICIPATION

The quest to increase the participation base and attract new supporters to the game continues to reap exciting benefits for the AFL competition

The AFL Game Development Department, in partnership with state and territory football organisations, is responsible for the development of the game at all levels below the AFL national competition.

It has two key objectives.

1. Increase the number of participants in the AFL game at all levels.
2. Attract new supporters to the AFL game.

There are five program areas dedicated to the pursuit of these objectives. They are:

- participation in the AFL game from junior to senior levels.
- talent identification and recruitment through the AFL draft.
- talent development in the Australian Institute of Sport/AFL Academy.
- training of coaches, officials, sports trainers and club personnel.
- administration of the game on national and international levels.

National managers in each of the above program areas work closely with their state and territory football counterparts to deliver quality programs to the local football community.

Participation

The number of participants in the AFL game continues to increase.

The AFL National Census, compiled by Street Ryan and Associates in consultation with AFL Game Development, shows that national participation in Australian Football increased from 391,782 in 2000 to 398,137 in 2001.

This increase has been driven by:

- Club football – up by 5.7 per cent to 254,621, and
- AFL Auskick – up by almost 18 per cent to 94,404.

Overall, the participation figures indicate that where the AFL has decided to invest and develop a national strategy, program outcomes have been exceptional. AFL Auskick is a prime example. In 1995, there were 47,402 AFL Auskick participants across Australia; in 2001 almost 94,404. In NSW/ACT, where the AFL has made a significant investment, registrations have risen from 4907 in 1998 to 15,183 in 2001. A similar trend has occurred in Queensland, with figures more than doubling in the period 2000 to 2001.

The spread of participation across Australia indicates that the heartland of the AFL game resides in the traditional football states, with Queensland and NSW/ACT increasing their share of the overall participation in the game. The number of people playing Australian Football per 100 eligible males (5-39 years) shows that the AFL game is extremely popular. The information also shows that there has been an increase in this rate in each state when compared with 2000.

Participation in school programs revealed a decrease in 2001, primarily due to more rigorous scrutinising of census data to eliminate double counting of players involved in both school and club football.

Key programs to enhance participation are as follows:

Player participation (national)

ACTIVE: AFL Auskick not only encourages children to learn the skills of Australian Football, but gets them playing modified games.

AFL Auskick

AFL Auskick, which has grown by an average of 12 per cent per annum since 1995 (see chart below), sees boys and girls aged five to 12 years play specially modified AFL games and activities for fun and enjoyment in a safe environment. It is conducted by parents and friends and is managed by the community.

Growth in registrations has been particularly strong in both NSW/ACT and in Queensland with the latter more than doubling its 6119 participation in 2000 to 13,763 in 2001. These results are particularly pleasing as the AFL seeks to create generations of new supporters. All registered AFL Auskick participants receive a benefits pack containing a Sherrin football, cap, poster and stickers and in 2001, participants also received a newly developed CD-ROM on the skills of the game.

The CD-ROM program is hosted by Wayne Carey and Michael Voss and features champions from each AFL team, tips and drills on the skills of the game, the goal and mark of the year and other special features. The CD-ROM was a significant improvement to the benefits pack and again underlined the AFL's commitment to lead the way in the development of resources.

Further, AFL Auskick provides an opportunity to connect young AFL followers with the AFL clubs they support. In 2001, each registered participant received a personalised letter from an AFL player from the club he or she supports. The contribution of AFL players to this program is vitally important to its success and the AFL and clubs will continue to work on initiatives that provide mutual benefits.

The AFL has an agreement with the Electrolux Group from 2002 to align the Simpson brand as the program sponsor for AFL Auskick for the next three years. Further, additional support provided by the Federal Government through the Australian Sports Commission will give rise to a three-way partnership to take participation forward. AFL Auskick has been a great recruiting tool for the AFL game and research conducted by AFL Game Development has been used to develop strategies to enhance the flow of participants to school and club football. In particular, children who make the transition from AFL Auskick into competition football need greater support in terms of resources and benefits. This will be a focus going forward.

Community club football

The running of the AFL game and the environment at the community club level is an important factor in participation in the AFL game. Chart at left depicts the strong growth in team numbers from 1990 to 2001, a growth which coincides with the AFL's increasing investment in grassroots development.

Game Development, in consultation with state football organisations, develops and implements national training programs for the development of coaches, umpires (field, goal, boundary and umpires' coaches) and sports trainers. These programs are in line with the Australian Sports Commission's education programs and sport industry vocational training programs and, accordingly, are competency based.

Relevant considerations include the way in which:

- clubs and facilities are managed by club volunteers.
- activities and games are presented and managed by coaches.
- games are umpired.
- players are supported by sports trainers and other support personnel.

These areas are keys to providing a high quality environment for the recruitment and retention of players.

Junior and youth football

While AFL Auskick is a strong recruiting program for the AFL, the transition of participants from AFL Auskick to school and club football is a major focus area for AFL Game Development.

In 2001, junior or primary school football was played under the AFL Auskick club policy. The AFL Auskick philosophy of "fun and safe" is extended into the club environment to maximise the transfer of participants from AFL Auskick.

AFL Game Development contracted the Deakin University Centre for Change Management (Sport Management) in 2001 to identify the factors that influence youth participants to play or not to play the AFL game as it is in the youth age group (13 to 18 years) where attrition levels are high. The findings will be used to develop strategies to attract and retain youth participants.

Club personnel education

The AFL recognises that the management of the community club and the quality of the environment in which the game is managed is vital to the ongoing development and health of the game.

Accordingly, the AFL, in partnership with the Australian Sports Commission through its Active Australia program, is developing an education package for volunteers who undertake such roles as president and secretary, as well as those who manage facilities and teams, liaise with local councils and seek sponsorship.

The aim of the project is to develop national training for club personnel similar to the programs offered for umpires and coaches. In 2001, a national audit was completed, relevant stakeholders were consulted and the areas of financial management, risk management, community relationships, planning, volunteer management and junior development were identified as being of great importance to club volunteers and administrators. Course modules will be developed for each of these areas and tested in 2002 for implementation in 2003.

AFL KickStart – indigenous communities

AFL KickStart, a program which incorporates AFL Auskick is directed at indigenous children aged five to 14 and living in remote communities across northern Australian, was expanded in 2001.

The program receives strong support from the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders Commission, ATSIC regional councils in Northern Australia, Rio Tinto in the Kimberley region of WA and governments of Western Australia, the Northern Territory and Queensland.

Curtin University's indigenous research centre evaluated the Rio Tinto AFL KickStart program in the Kimberleys and found it increased:

- individual self-esteem and confidence.
- community cohesion and sense of purpose.
- individual well-being and awareness of healthy lifestyles.
- school attendance and academic achievement.

The program was perceived to have helped decrease:

- community vandalism; alcohol and substance abuse; smoking; anti-social behaviour; crime at festivals and events.

The Just Jeans Cup took place in Darwin in June and gave young players from remote communities in the Kimberleys and Northern Territory an opportunity they would otherwise not have had.

However, AFL KickStart is not just a football program. It promotes health and lifestyle messages to young people and utilises role models from the AFL.

Coach education

Major initiatives in coach education in 2001 were the production and distribution of a new AFL Auskick National Coaching Manual and an interactive coaching CD-ROM.

In partnership with the AFL Players' Association, a Level 2 coaching course was conducted for 33 recently retired or experienced AFL players who were either coaching or considering a coaching career.

A total of 2754 coaches attained level one accreditation and 235 level two.

Umpire education

Accreditation programs are provided for field, goal and boundary umpires at all levels. In 2001, an umpires' coach program was implemented following a trial in the previous year. In addition, a significant number of level two and level three umpires were re-accredited during the year.

The number of umpires who completed their training in 2001 was as follows:

Umpire Accreditation
	Field	Goal	Boundary	Coach
Level 1	590	155	400	105
Level 2	325	175	143	-
Level 3	17	-	-	-

A significant problem for the AFL is the retention of umpires, particularly field umpires, as the number recruited annually does not match the number retiring. Strategies are being developed to redress this in 2002.

Volunteers

As 2001 was the International Year of the Volunteer, the AFL recognised the work of some 27,000 volunteers who received AFL recognition certificates signed by AFL Chief Executive Officer Wayne Jackson and the AFL ambassador for volunteers, Essendon coach Kevin Sheedy.

All AFL community clubs around Australia were asked to nominate volunteers to receive a certificate and these were presented by the clubs. In addition, more than 650 certificates were sent to volunteers who conduct the game overseas.

The AFL also recognised volunteers in each state who had given the longest service to the game and a special AFL volunteers medallion was presented to 55 people at ceremonies in each state and with the support of the state football organisation. Some volunteers have been working to assist the AFL game for more than 55 years.

In recognition of the work of all volunteers, without whom the AFL game could not be conducted, AFL Commission Chairman Ron Evans invited Len and Ora Ablett, volunteers for 50-plus years with the Myrtleford Football Club in the Ovens and Murray Football League, to the AFL Grand Final. Len was given the honour of tossing the coin at the start of the game.

Talented Player Pathway

The AFL, in partnership with the state and territory football organisations, conducts a comprehensive program of activities that identifies the talented player and then nurtures that talent in specialised training programs.

AFL National Championships

The under-16 and under-18 national titles are benchmark competitions for talented, developing players. In each state and territory, development squads below the under-16 age group provide talented players with the opportunity to develop their skills. The AFL National Under 16 Championships were held in Adelaide in 2001 and was won by Victoria Country (Division 1) and NSW/ACT (Division 2).

The AFL National Under 18 Championships are held annually in Melbourne and the winners in 2001 were Victoria Metropolitan (Division 1) and Tasmania (Division 2).

AIS/AFL Academy

The academy program, a joint initiative of the AFL and the Australian Institute of Sport, is a non-residential program and brings together selected players for three camps throughout the year. All 30 scholarship-holders have individual programs and, under the tutelage of head coach Terry Wheeler, are guided through their education, football and vocation. The camp program monitors players' development and sets goals for the group and for individuals. In 2001, the AIS/AFL Academy played an International Rules Series against Ireland with games in Melbourne and Perth. Australia defeated Ireland 3-0.

Also in 2001, two specialist groups were added to the academy program:

- A tall player program. Ten players were invited to participate in a program under the direction of former Brownlow Medallist Scott Wynd and former Geelong ruckman Darren Flanigan. Taller players take longer to develop and mature and this program investigates ways to monitor and accelerate that process wherever possible.
- Developing states program. Six talented players were selected from New South Wales and Queensland and invited to join in the second AIS/AFL camp. This allows them to benchmark their skill and fitness levels with those of players in the Academy program.

The AIS/AFL Academy's success can be seen in the number of players who are drafted and play in the national competition. Since the first intake of players into the AIS/AFL Academy in 1998, 76 'graduates' have been drafted and 69 are still on AFL lists. In the 2001 AFL National Draft, 23 graduates were selected, the first seven players selected were AIS/AFL academy graduates, and 13 of the first 16 selections were players who had attended the Academy.

Overall, the academy is producing two draftees for every three participants — a great result given the relatively young age at which the boys are offered a place.

AFL Draft Camp

In 2001, 76 players attended the AFL Draft Camp at the Australian Institute of Sport in Canberra. All players who attended had been nominated by at least six AFL clubs and they completed a battery of physical, physiological, psychological and medical tests.

AFL club representatives were on hand to observe and assess their football skills and interview up to six players about their goals in football and assess their potential to make the grade at AFL level.

All AFL clubs were later provided with a comprehensive report on each player. This information was complemented by state recruiting reports received throughout the year.

International AFL

While national development programs are AFL Game Development's priority, it is also responsible for supporting Australian Football programs overseas.

Modest grants have been made available to support the development of a junior program to underpin viable senior competitions.

In this category, grants have been made to Canada, Denmark, England and Nauru. A greater investment has been made in Papua-New Guinea ($30,000), New Zealand ($150,000) and the United States ($120,000).

In 2001, in partnership with Australian Volunteers International, the AFL placed a development officer in the north-west province of South Africa. The volunteer, Dale Alsford, has established programs in primary and secondary schools and has set up AFL Auskick centres in several communities.

In 2001, an AFL international advisory committee was formed to help coordinate international activities and advise the AFL on relevant issues. A number of countries received affiliation agreements relating to the development of junior programs and administration support for formal competitions.

The committee also began preparations for the International Cup to be held in Melbourne in August 2002 with entries from Canada, Denmark, Great Britain, Ireland, Japan, Nauru, New Zealand, Papua-New Guinea, Samoa, South Africa and the US.

Game Development review

In 2001, the AFL undertook a comprehensive review of the development of the game.

A review committee, chaired by AFL Commissioner Colin Carter, received information from all state and territory football organisations and from different levels within those organisations and submitted its report to the AFL Commission in December 2001.

The review found positive outcomes have been achieved in game development over the past decade. These include:

- a reversal in the previous decline in participation rates through the 1980s.
- targeted national programs – AFL Auskick, Coach Accreditation and the Talented Player Pathway – which have set the benchmark for Australian sport.
- a dramatic upturn in participation in NSW and Queensland.

The AFL Commission will consider the report and the feedback from AFL clubs and state and territory football organisations during 2002.

Funding Game Development via the states

The AFL, through AFL Game Development, provides financial support to the state and territory football organisations through direct grants and, depending on players drafted from the states, through transfer fees. In 2001, $16.1 million was allocated to state and territory football organisations to assist them to implement the National Development Plan and $370,000 was allocated to the development of the AFL game at the international level.

Almost $4.4 million in transfer fees was distributed to states and territories and these funds are used for development programs and, in some states, to provide financial assistance to the club from which the AFL player was drafted.

TENTH STRAIGHT RECORD OPERATING SURPLUS

Revenue and operating surplus have grown each year since 1992

The AFL's operating surplus for the year ended 31 October, 2001, was a record $66.5 million. This was a $4.4 million increase (7%) on the previous year and represented the 10th consecutive year of increased operating surpluses. Total revenue in 2001 was $116.6 million, up 5.3% on 2000.

From this operating surplus the AFL made distributions totalling $83.3 million. These distributions comprised of:

- payments to AFL clubs totalling $61.8 million – an increase of $11.6 million (23%);
- payments to states for game development grants totalled $16.5 million – an increase of $1.4 million (9%);
- payments to the AFL Players' Association for its welfare fund and other initiatives totalled $5 million – an increase of $1 million (25%).

The net result of the AFL after all distributions was a deficit of $16.8 million. This result was in line with the budget set at the start of the year.

Major revenue and expenditure items

The major income and expenditure items in 2001 were:

- revenue from sponsorship/television rights/radio rights totalled $52.1 million – an increase of $6 million over 2000 (13%);
- operating expenditure totalled $50 million – an increase of $1.4 million over 2000 (3%).

Payments to clubs

The AFL makes regular payments to clubs in the form of club distributions, AFL Members' Club Support, AFL Members' contributions, finals allowances, prizemoney, totalling $58.0 million. The full details of these payments are shown in the table on page 79.

One-off payments to clubs

During the year other one-off payments to clubs totalled $3.8 million.

These included:

- payments for settlement of outstanding matters related to the 2000 season at Colonial Stadium;
- the subsidy payable for games relocated from Optus Oval to Colonial Stadium in 2001;
- payments for the settlement of catering rights related to grounds no longer used for AFL matches;
- payments to clubs for signage at Colonial Stadium.

Other financial matters

Other financial matters completed during and after the year end included the following:

- the AFL paid $30 million in March 2002 for the ownership rights to Colonial Stadium in 2026. This payment was funded by a prepayment from the broadcasting rights for 2002.
- the AFL's borrowings increased to $19 million at October 31, 2001. These borrowings were necessary to support payments related to the AFL's deficit ($16.8 million) as well as some remaining payments for the AFL's construction and ownership of its new offices.
- after the financial year, the AFL announced the conditional sale of the Waverley Park site for $110 million (book value – $45.1 million).

Key challenges

The AFL's key challenges for the upcoming year are to:

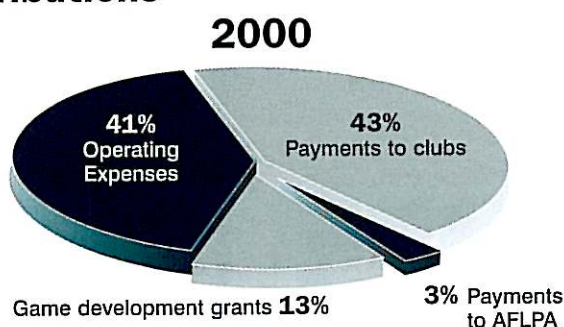

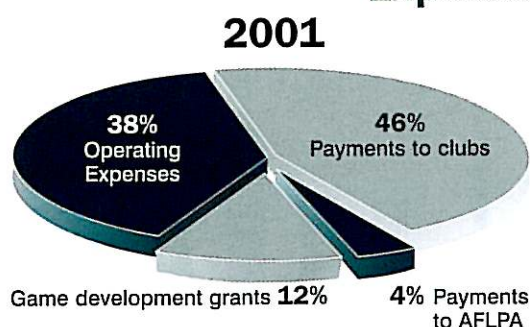

- manage the special financial assistance packages that are being made available to clubs.
- report monthly on key performance indicators (both financial and non-financial).
- review the possibility of establishing a shared financial services function between the AFL, state bodies and AFL clubs.
- review the AFL's revenue sharing policies.

Revenues

In 2001, total AFL revenue increased by $5.8 million to $116.6 million. Since 1992, AFL revenue has increased by 172 per cent and will increase further with the start of the new TV broadcasting agreement in 2002. Major revenue items included:

- Sponsorship and broadcasting rights – $52.1 million.
- AFL finals series – $18 million.
- AFL membership department – $16.5 million.
- Publications – $6.6 million.
- Consumer products – $5.9 million.
- Equalisation income – $5.8 million.

Revenue

Operating expenses

AFL operating expenses grew by $1.4 million to $50.0 million in 2001. About two-thirds of this increase was due to increased expenditure on game development and ground improvements. A key financial challenge for the AFL is to keep operating expenses as low as possible.

Included in operating expenses were payments totaling $1.6 million for ground improvements at the Gabba in Brisbane, Stadium Australia in Sydney, Subiaco Oval in Perth, and Football Park in Adelaide.

Operating Expenses

Operating surplus

The AFL's operating result in 2001 showed a surplus of $66.5 million, an increase of $4.4 million (up 3.1%) on the 2000 operating surplus. This was a pleasing result as the AFL increased revenue by $5.8 million while keeping the increase in operating expenses to $1.4 million.

From its operating surplus, the AFL makes payments to clubs, the AFL Players' Association and the states in the form of game development grants.

Operating Surplus

Payments to clubs

Payments to clubs continued to rise in 2001 with a total of $61.8 million being paid, an increase of $11.6 million on 2000. Since 1992, payments to clubs have risen by 193 per cent. These payments comprise:

- Base distribution – $50.5 million.
- Other payments (see table on page 79) – $7.5 million.
- Special payments – $3.8 million.

These payments include amounts paid as part of the ground buy-out agreements, and signage rights at Colonial Stadium.

Payments to clubs

Payments to AFLPA

As part of the Collective Bargaining Agreement between the AFL and the AFL Players' Association, the AFL was committed to paying the AFL Players' Association $5 million in 2001 to help fund its activities which include the AFL Players' Retirement Fund and various player welfare and education programs.

Game development grants

Grants to help fund game development activities continued to increase in 2001. A total of $16.5 million was spent in this area in 2001, an increase of $1.4 million on 2000. Since 1992, spending on game development has increased more than five-fold.

Almost half the grants paid in 2001 were directed to New South Wales, the ACT and Queensland, areas in which the potential for growth in participation of Australian Football is greatest.

The football community reveres footballers who produce their best in AFL Grand Finals. As a consequence, it would be ruing the loss in 2001 of a number of retirees from 2001 who produced match-winning performances in premierships in the 1990s.

The goalkicking heroics of Adelaide wizard Darren Jarman in the final quarters of both the 1997 and 1998 Grand Finals are legendary. West Coast Eagles midfielder Dean Kemp was among the Eagles' best in their 1992 premiership and he won the Norm Smith Medal in 1994. Essendon duo Michael Long and Dean Wallis played in the 1993 and 2000 premiership sides, with Long winning the Norm Smith Medal in 1993.

Anthony Rock was a prolific ball-winner in the Kangaroos' 1995 triumph. The AFL's full-back of the century, Stephen Silvagni, starred in Carlton's 1995 premiership side.

While he did not play in a premiership side, Geelong's Garry Hocking won a club record four best and fairests.

These players, along with the likes of Tony Modra, Matthew Robran, Dale Lewis, Jose Romero, John Barnes, Dean Rice, Paul Broderick and Brendon Gale, are ornaments of the game and will be sorely missed.

Bob Pratt

Australian Football Hall of Fame Legend

Former South Melbourne champion full-forward Bob Pratt died in Melbourne, aged 88, on January 6, 2001. Pratt, who played 158 games from 1930 to 1939 and 1946 and kicked 681 goals, was an Australian Football Hall of Fame Legend. His tally of 150 goals in 1934 has been equalled (by Hawthorn's Peter Hudson in 1971), but never bettered. He kicked more than 100 goals in three successive seasons (109 in 1933, 150 in 1934 and 103 in 1935). His best in one game was 15 against Essendon in 1934 and in that season, he reached 100 goals in 13 games. He topped South's goalkicking six times and was leading VFL goalkicker three times. In 1941, Pratt set a VFA season goalkicking record of 183 with Preston, including 22 in one game against Sandringham. He made a brief return to South Melbourne in 1946.

Ian Drake, a major architect behind St Kilda's one and only premiership in 1966, died on April 14, 2001, aged 71, after a long battle with Parkinson's Disease. From Launceston, Drake became secretary in 1958 and with the late Graham Huggins, then president, did much to build St Kilda into a power side in the 1960s. Drake was responsible for getting Tasmanians Darrel Baldock, Ian Stewart, Verdun Howell and John Bingley to St Kilda. All played in the premiership side. Drake worked quietly, but with enthusiasm and brought dozens of young hopefuls to St Kilda.

He coached in 1940, then from 1948 to 1953 and 1958 to 1962, taking North into its first Grand Final in 1950 and into the preliminary finals in 1949 and 1958. ## 2001 AWARDS, WINNERS & RESULTS

THE major award winners of 2001 included Brisbane Lions midfielder Jason Akermanis, who won the 2001 Brownlow Medal, Essendon's Matthew Lloyd, who won the John Coleman Medal, and Brisbane Lion Shaun Hart, who won the Norm Smith Medal. For the first time, the premiership coach (Leigh Matthews) was presented with the Jock McHale Medal. The Brisbane Lions won the AFL premiership and Port Adelaide the Ansett Cup.

Brownlow Medal 2001

Jason Akermanis, whose victory handstands are as much a part of his football persona as his slashing speed and long goals, won the 2001 Brownlow Medal by two votes in a tense finish from Adelaide's Andrew McLeod.

The blond-haired Lion was a popular winner and five days after the big night, he was back on centre stage as a premiership player at the MCG.

The Lions dominated the voting, amassing 99 votes. Next best were Essendon with 90 and Port Adelaide with 87. Fifteen Lions won votes with 65 going to four players – Akermanis (23), Michael Voss (19), Simon Black (12) and Chris Johnson (11).

Before the count, it was argued that Brisbane would not produce the winner because it had too many players in contention. However, Akermanis defied the talk, won five best-on-ground votes and brought himself and his club great honour.

KEY LION: Jason Akermanis played a crucial role in Brisbane's midfield in 2001.

Akermanis, 24, is a thoroughbred, a key member of Brisbane's celebrated midfield, a player with devastating dash and an ability to kick long goals while travelling at top speed.

His victory handstands in front of admiring fans at the Gabba also became a trademark. Even three days after the Grand Final win, in a ticktape parade through the centre of Brisbane, the crowd shouted for Akermanis to do a handstand.

In sporting style, he obliged.

The pre-count favourite, brilliant Adelaide on-baller Andrew McLeod, polled six best-on-ground votes, but fell short when he did not poll in the final three rounds.

The last player to win the medal and play in a premiership side in the same season was Gavin Wanganeen, now at Port Adelaide but then at Essendon.

The Brownlow count was conducted in the Palladium Ballroom at Crown Casino, but because of travel problems after the collapse of Ansett Australia, plus the fact that the Lions were in the Grand Final, the Brisbane players watched the proceedings on television at the Gabba.

After receiving the medal from his captain, Voss, a jubilant Akermanis paid tribute to his mother, who died four years earlier, and made special mention of his fiancée, Megan Legge, and her family. He said that after seeing his mother's struggle with illness, his advice was to relax, have fun and avoid stress.

Akermanis's football career, which always threatened to skyrocket, is now in full flight. In addition to his Brownlow, he has two All-Australian jumpers, a club best and fairest (equal, 1999), a Jim Stynes Medal and, of course, a premiership medal.

Akermanis is the second Brisbane player to win a Brownlow after Voss shared the award with Essendon's James Hird in 1996.

Interesting aspects of the voting saw the 2000 winner, Melbourne's Shane Woewodin, poll only four votes. West Coast captain Ben Cousins polled 18 votes compared with the next best Eagle, Michael Gardiner, who polled six votes. Ineligible Port Adelaide player Josh Francou – he had been suspended during the year – polled strongly to finish with 19 votes.

The AFL's oldest player, Carlton's Craig Bradley, showed his remarkable resilience by polling 10 votes to be equal best at Carlton with Adrian Hickmott and Darren Hulme. Bradley turned 38 a month after the count.

Maiden voyage for premiership cup

Grand Final day 2001 was a triumph for the national competition, football in Queensland and thousands of Brisbane Lions supporters, many of them former Fitzroy fans. This was a premiership for the battlers who learnt to live with hard knocks while watching other clubs scoop the cream.

For the first time, the premiership went to Queensland as the relentless Brisbane Lions barnstormed their way over Essendon, the 2000 champions.

The victory completed a record-breaking year for the Lions and was their 16th straight win, well clear of the club's previous best winning streak of 10, set in 1999.

Yet here was a club that as late as 1998 had finished with the wooden spoon. That was before Leigh Matthews, the former Hawthorn star and one-time Collingwood coach, was enticed north.

The result was there for all to see on September 29. As a player, Matthews was a member of four Hawthorn premiership sides, including one as captain in 1983, and as coach, he directed Collingwood to a flag in 1990.

While the Collingwood title was a drought-breaker, victory for the Lions was a Cinderella story and tens of thousands of non-Essendon fans bolstered the vocal support at the MCG.

As Matthews said later: "I've been lucky enough to have been involved in AFL football for 33 years – 17 years as a player, 13 as a coach and three as a media commentator ... But I cannot recall a more memorable moment than the Brisbane Lions' Grand Final win of 2001.

"... the Lions flag is really, really special."

AFL Commission chairman Ron Evans described the win as the absolute consummation of a 'marriage' that now thrives in spectacular fashion.

He was referring to the merge between the Brisbane Bears and Fitzroy after the 1996 season. Fitzroy players in the premiership side included Chris Johnson and Martin Pike (who arrived via the Kangaroos) and full-forward Alastair Lynch, a key player in the win, had also played for Fitzroy years earlier.

In the Grand Final, it was a goal from Lynch on the half-time siren that reduced Essendon's lead to 14 points and sparked the Lions to greater heights. In the second half, the Lions were dominant, outscoring Essendon 10.8 to 4.4.

Fitzroy's last premiership was in 1944, during World War II. But the colours – adopted by the merged side – flew proudly and in abundance on Grand Final day in 2001.

There were many heroes, but none was better than Shaun Hart, a Brisbane veteran playing in his 205th game who won the Norm Smith Medal as best on ground.

2001 AFL Grand Final

MCG - September 29, 2001

Brisbane Lions	3.7	5.10	11.12	15.18	(108)
----------------	-----	------	-------	-------	-------

Essendon	3.2	8.6	9.8	12.10	(82)
----------	-----	-----	-----	-------	------

Best: Brisbane – Hart, Voss, Lappin, Leppitsch, Brown, Power.

Essendon – Lucas, Lloyd, J. Johnson, Wellman, Ramanauskas.

Goals: Brisbane – Power 3, Lynch 2, Lappin 2, Brown 2, Akermanis 2, Voss, Notting, Ashcroft, Pike.

Essendon – Lloyd 5, Lucas 4, J. Johnson, Moorcroft, Caracella.

Umpires: M. James, S. McLaren, M. Ellis

Attendance: 91,482

Norm Smith Medal: Shaun Hart (Brisbane)

Lappin, Justin Leppitsch, Luke Power and Darryl White were other Lions deserving of special praise.

For Essendon, the loss was the anticlimax in a season that had lacked the lustre of 2000 when the club won the flag and lost only one of its 25 games. In 2001, the return was still very good with five defeats in the home and away season and another in the Grand Final.

Those who labelled Essendon as 'unbeatable' at the start of 2001 are now saying similar things about the Lions.

The Lions' win meant that the premiership cup travelled north of the Murray River for the first time since the first premiership was won in 1897. It had gone west four times – twice with the West Coast Eagles and twice with Adelaide – but never north.

The morning after the Grand Final, thousands gathered at the Brunswick Street Oval, home of the old Fitzroy Lions. In the crowd were those who had followed the Queensland club since its beginning in 1987 as the Brisbane Bears plus the throngs of former Fitzroy fans and more recent supporters.

This was a rare show of strength at the Lions' spiritual home, a venue that had served old Fitzroy through thick and thin.

Later on the same day, it was more of the same for the Lions who were treated to a rousing homecoming at the Gabba. And on the following Tuesday, they were feted with a ticker-tape parade through the city streets. The club also received the key to the city and a state reception and players later toured regional Queensland with the cup.

The premiership topped a wonderful year for the Lions as early on in Grand Final week Jason Akermanis brought honor to himself, his club and to Queensland when he won the Brownlow Medal.

McHale Medal 2001

Brisbane had its name against a number of prizes in 2001: its first flag, its first Norm Smith Medal, its second Brownlow Medal and its first Jock McHale Medal. In fact, when coach Leigh Matthews received his McHale Medal, he made history. In 2001, the AFL introduced an award for the premiership coach and named it the Jock McHale Medal, after the legendary Collingwood coach, and made it retrospective back to 1950, the year after McHale retired.

Jock (James) McHale was coach for a League record 714 matches from 1912 to 1949. He took the Magpies to 59 finals, including 17 Grand Finals, for eight flags and a win-rate of 66 per cent. McHale also played 261 games with Collingwood from 1903 to 1920.

Matthews is building a similarly healthy list of achievements. He has now been involved in six premierships – two as a coach and four as a 332-game player with Hawthorn. He coached Collingwood to a drought-breaking flag in 1990.

He quit as coach after the 1995 season, but was enticed out of his media role by Brisbane after the 1998 season for immediate gains. The 1998 wooden-spooner shot to fourth spot under Matthews with 18 wins in 25 games. In 2000, it notched 13 wins in 24 games and last year, of course, achieved ultimate glory.

Matthews, the player, was tough and disciplined. Nicknamed 'Lethal' early in his career, respect was one of his three Rs and he won eight best and fairest awards. Matthews, the coach, is no different.

Captain Michael Voss said after the Grand Final: "From the moment he walked in the door, you knew he really meant business. I couldn't possibly begin to start (to say) what Leigh Matthews has done for the Brisbane Lions Football Club. It is absolutely enormous."

Matthews turned a list with much potential into players who delivered. He had great performances from recycled players Martin Pike (Melbourne, Fitzroy, Kangaroos) and Mal Michael (Collingwood) and he got great improvement out of young stars Jonathan Brown, Robert Copeland and Simon Black. He helped turn Jason Akermanis from a good player into a Brownlow Medallist and he helped Norm Smith Medallist Shaun Hart use his extra gear to greatest advantage.

Matthews coached superbly during the finals and kept his team, which is relatively inexperienced in finals football, focused and perfectly prepared. The Lions' club record 16 straight wins from round 10 is testament to that. Opposed to master coach Kevin Sheedy on Grand Final day, he played a perfect hand yet later downplayed his influence. "What gradually happened this year was a momentum built within the group, which is what usually happens when you have a really good patch," he said. "It's led by the players, the leadership of Michael (Voss) and his cohorts."

Matthews' tactics and ability to adapt with the changes in the modern game are strengths and he is constantly looking for ways to improve his and his team's performances. Lions fans can only wait with great optimism for season 2002.

Norm Smith Medal 2001

Brisbane Lions on-baller Shaun Hart showed the value of persistence and endurance when he won the Norm Smith Medal after an outstanding performance in the AFL Grand Final.

Hart, a Brisbane player since 1990 after moving north from Shepparton United in Victoria, has been one of the club's most dedicated players over his 205 games.

Accepting the medal at the MCG before a crowd of 91,482 and a television audience of millions, Hart first and foremost thanked Jesus Christ.

It was a popular victory as nobody in the Lions camp has worked harder for success and Hart has sometimes not received the praise he has so richly deserved.

Hart has always been team player and there was no better example of that on Grand Final day. He ran himself into the ground, threw himself into packs and played with the desperation of a man determined to get his hands on that premiership cup.

"I love the Brisbane Lions footy club. I love our players. I love our coaches. I love the whole system up here," he said after collecting the Norm Smith Medal.

He collected 23 disposals and made four crucial centre clearances in a spirited performance that ensured his teammates would be sharing in the ultimate success come siren time.

Regarded as one of the fittest players in the AFL, Hart has been able to extract everything he can out of his smallish build (175 centimetres, 75 kilograms). He has seven top 10 finishes in Brisbane's best and fairest and has won praise for his dedication and consistency.

He has now survived 12 seasons at the top level and has seen the club grow from its old and somewhat frustrating days at Carrara to now where the Lions are regarded as one of the leading clubs, both on and off the field, in the competition.

On the field, he is always busy – not only in the Grand Final when he hit a peak, but in the many tight games over the years that required extra efforts if they were to be won.

Hart, ever-familiar in a helmet to reduce the impact of heavy knocks, was a clear winner of the Norm Smith Medal with nine votes, beating teammate Nigel Lappin by four.

He joins an illustrious group that includes James Hird, Andrew McLeod, Greg Williams, Peter Matera, Gary Ablett and Gary Ayres.

The Norm Smith Medal is Hart's biggest individual success with his previous best football accolade being a third placing in the 1995 club best and fairest.

The medal honours the late Norm Smith, the great Melbourne player and premiership coach who played in four premiership sides with Melbourne and coached the club to six flags in the 1950s and 1960s.

The 2001 winner again comes from the premiership side. Since the medal was first struck in 1979, the only exceptions have been Maurice Rioli (Richmond, 1982) and Ablett (Geelong, 1989).

Coleman Medal 2001

Essendon full-forward Matthew Lloyd won the John Coleman Medal for the second straight year in 2001 after kicking 96 goals in the home and away series. He kicked another nine goals in the finals to take his season's tally to 105.

Lloyd missed three games due to Tribunal suspensions and considering that he averaged almost five goals per home and away game, the misses almost certainly cost him a home and away century.

Lloyd was never challenged in the race for the medal, finishing 42 goals clear of Alastair Lynch (Brisbane) and Matthew Richardson (Richmond), who each kicked 54. Lloyd's biggest bags in 2001 were 10 against West Coast, nine against the Kangaroos, eight against Hawthorn, seven against West Coast and six against each of Adelaide, Geelong and Richmond.

Lloyd, who turned 23 in 2001, was selected in the All-Australian side at full-forward for the third successive year and in 1998 was named in the forward pocket.

The Coleman Medal is named in honour of the late great Essendon full-forward, John Coleman. He played between 1949 and 1954 and kicked 537 goals in 98 games for an average of 5.48 per game before a knee injury prematurely ended his spectacular career.

In 2001, the AFL decided to honour the leading goalkickers before 1981 by making the Coleman Medal retrospective back to 1955 – the year after Coleman retired as a player. It also decided to award the Leading Goalkicker Medal to the top goalkicker at the end of the home and away games from 1897 to 1954.

The Essendon star has improved his goalkicking at a remarkable rate over the past few seasons. He booted 63 in the 1997 home and away season; he followed that with 70 in 1998 and 87 in 1999. By 2000, he had kicked 94 goals in the home and away season and last year he booted 96, despite missing those three games.

For the second successive year, Lloyd reached the coveted 100-mark during the finals. His best tallies in 2001 were 10 (against West Coast), nine against the Kangaroos and eight against Hawthorn. He has topped Essendon's goalkicking every year since 1997 and in seven years has kicked 459 goals in 127 games for an average of 3.61. His average in 2001 was 5.05 goals per game.

Ansett Rising Star 2001

Young centre half-back Justin Koschitzke provided one of the highlights of St Kilda's 2001 season when he was named the Ansett Rising Star. He is the first St Kilda player to win since the award was launched in 1993.

Koschitzke won by four votes from West Coast's Daniel Kerr with Essendon's Mark McVeigh a further four votes back in third place.

Koschitzke had the credentials to win. He was the second player taken at the 2000 AFL National Draft, broke into St Kilda's senior side in round three, 2001, and played strongly in all remaining games.

From the small New South Wales country town of Brocklesby, north-west of Albury, he played with the Murray Bushrangers en route to St Kilda. He said: "As I was growing up, I thought I would play bush footy all the time and I was going to be happy with that because it's what everyone around the area did. I had a go at the Bushrangers, plugged away and it's all turned out well."

The votes were announced at the Hyatt Hotel in Melbourne on September 11. Twelve of the 16 clubs had nominees.

To be eligible, a player had to be under 21 on or before December 31, 2000, not have played more than 10 senior games (for premiership points/finals) before the start of 2001 and not have been suspended by the AFL or a state league tribunal during the 2001 premiership season.

The judges were Rod Austin, Kevin Bartlett, Andrew Demetriou, Gerard Healy, Neil Kerley, Robert Walls and Chris Mainwaring. Wayne Jackson was non-voting chairman.

Three clubs supply half the All-Australian side

Ten clubs provided the 22 players for the 2001 All-Australian side, with the Brisbane Lions and Essendon providing the biggest share of four each and Port Adelaide three. Fremantle, Geelong, the Kangaroos, Melbourne, St Kilda and 2001 finalist Sydney were not represented.

James Hird, the Essendon captain, had the honour of captaining the team for the first time and his deputy was Michael Voss, the Brisbane skipper.

The All-Australian captain of the past three years, Kangaroos leader Wayne Carey, was not included. He missed a number of games due to injury and suspension, managing only 14 for the season.

Collingwood captain Nathan Buckley maintained his great run by winning selection for the sixth successive year. He was the only Collingwood representative in the side.

The Lions were represented by Voss, 2001 Brownlow Medallist Jason Akermanis, Simon Black and Nigel Lappin, and Essendon by Hird, Sean Wellman, Matthew Lloyd and Jason Johnson.

Lloyd, the 2001 Coleman Medallist, won the full-forward spot for the third successive year.

In the All-Australian side for the first time were Hawthorn pair Jonathan Hay and Joel Smith, Port Adelaide's Matthew Primus and Warren Tredrea, Brisbane's Black and Lappin, Essendon's Johnson, Richmond's Brad Ottens and the Western Bulldogs' Nathan Brown.

Another Lappin, Carlton half-forward Matthew, was tipped to win a berth in attack, but missed out. Others considered unlucky to miss selection were Scott Camporeale (Carlton), Adem Yze (Melbourne), Luke Darcy (Western Bulldogs), Nick Stevens and Josh Francou (Port Adelaide) and David King (Kangaroos).

The last All-Australian team which did not have a Kangaroos player was in 1992.

Port did well to have three representatives – Wanganeen, Primus and Tredrea – considering it had produced only one, Adam Heuskes in 1997, in its four seasons in the AFL.

Smith had an impressive season with Hawthorn after struggling with form and injury a year earlier. The former St Kilda player had always shown promise and in 2001 he delivered.

Wellman won back the centre half-back post that he held in 1998. This meant a reshuffle by selectors who also wanted Richmond centre half-back Gaspar in the side. Gaspar, centre half-back in the 2000 side, was slotted in on the last line in a back pocket.

The other back pocket, Wanganeen, spent a good deal of time in the forward line in 2001, kicking 41 goals, but he is just as much at home in defence as in attack.

Players from the 2000 side who missed in 2001 were Damien

Hardwick, Dustin Fletcher, Andrew Kellaway, Scott West, Scott Camporeale, Carey, Jeff Farmer, Michael O'Loughlin, Steven King, Anthony Koutoufides, Lance Whitnall, Brent Harvey, Mark Ricciuto and Brad Johnson – a sizeable total of 14.

The awards were announced at a glittering night at Crown Casino on September 3.

Irish dominate series

Matthew Lloyd got the Australian fans out of their seats — and their armchairs — in the second Test in Adelaide with a sensational mid-air soccer goal in the second quarter and the home side went off at half-time one point up in a must-win game.

Another Australian Football player provided the highlights in the second half, young Sydney Swan Tadgh Kennelly, but unfortunately he was playing for the Irish.

And so it was that Australia — so supreme in Ireland in 2000 — lost both matches and the series. It had dominated in Ireland, winning both Tests by a total of 25 points and looking to have the measure of the Irish, the round ball and the game. How quickly the tide turns.

The Irish arrived in Australia with a steely focus, stung by the whitewash at home. The band of part-time footballers and full-time teachers, sales reps and mechanics were six points down at half-time in the first Test at the MCG and the Australians were peppering the sticks, though not finding the net for those all-important six-pointers.

Tireless Carlton (and Australian) captain Craig Bradley was inspirational and received great support from Jason Johnson, Matthew Nicks, Joel Bowden and Andrew McLeod, but the Australians could not turn possession into points often enough. The Irish kicked goals in each of the third and fourth quarters and, with a new physical side to their game, won by a goal.

New Australian coach Garry Lyon was far from discouraged and headed to Adelaide confident of securing the seven points needed to win the series.

But if the Irish were focused at the MCG, they were hot at Football Park. The side that was out-run and outplayed at Croke Park had sweet revenge. They passed and kicked and soccered the ball around with enormous skill, they were direct and ran the ball through the centre, their pace was superior and in the end, they cruised to a comfortable win and a clean sweep of the series.

For coach Brian McEniff, at the helm in only his second year, captain Anthony Tohill and the team, it had been a long 12 months and it was time to celebrate.

Players of the series were Darren Fay, veteran of eight International Rules games, and Matthew Lloyd, who won the Jim Stynes Medal.

Once again, the series was well accepted and more than 80,000 attended the two games, including almost 50,000 on a cold and damp night at the first Test at the MCG. The series received good media support and both games were covered by Channel Nine in the network's first foray into football since being part of the successful group that was granted the AFL's television rights from the end of the 2001 season.

In the four-year agreement with the Gaelic Athletic Association — the agreement was renewed in 2001 — Australia lost in 1998 (after a win and a loss), lost in 1999 (loss and a draw) and won in 2000.

Grand final makes history on many fronts

History was the big talking point in Port Adelaide's grand final victory over the Brisbane Lions in the 2001 Ansett Cup. It was Port Adelaide's first grand final victory, the first time an AFL grand final had been played outside Victoria (at Football Park in Adelaide), Brisbane's first grand final appearance and the first grand final between two non-Victorian clubs.

Port Adelaide's 85 point win — 3.8 (26) to 17.9 (111) — was the biggest-ever pre-season/night series grand final victory since the series started in 1956.

The series was again played according to a round robin format with four groups of four clubs. Each club played the other three clubs in its group with the four winners earning semi-final berths.

The four groups were...

- Group one: Essendon, Geelong, Port Adelaide, Sydney
- Group two: Collingwood, St Kilda, West Coast, Kangaroos
- Group three: Carlton, Adelaide, Western Bulldogs, Brisbane
- Group four: Richmond, Fremantle, Hawthorn, Melbourne

Port Adelaide defender Adam Kingsley won the Michael Tuck Medal as the best player in the grand final and received the medal from Tuck, the former Hawthorn champion, at Football Park.

A highlight of the match was the brilliant second-quarter four-goal burst by Stuart Dew to set up the Port win. The Lions were outplayed after the first quarter and did not score goals in the second and last quarters.

When the 2001 series started, it seemed Port Adelaide was in the toughest group — with Essendon, the 2000 Ansett Cup champion and premiership season premier. However, Port bowled over the Bombers in its first match and maintained the pressure over the next four matches.

The four group winners were Hawthorn, Port Adelaide, the Kangaroos and Brisbane. In the semi-finals, Port beat the Kangaroos and Brisbane accounted for Hawthorn.

The grand final attracted 35,304 fans and the series 398,309 — up from 335,772 in 2000.

Twenty-seven games were played at venues throughout Australia. They were: Colonial Stadium and Optus Oval (Victoria); the Gabba and Cairns Oval (Queensland); Football Park (South Australia); Subiaco (Western Australia); Manuka Oval (ACT); Marrara Oval (Northern Territory); Westpac Stadium (New Zealand).

Barrie Robran is Legend 17

Barrie Robran has long been considered a legend in South Australian football and on May 21, 2001, it became official when he was announced a Legend in the Australian Football Hall of Fame.

Robran didn't play in the AFL/VFL, but in his home state he is revered. He became the Hall of Fame's 17th Legend and joined the cream of the game's elite.

Another eight former players were inducted into the Hall of Fame in a star-studded evening in the Plaza Ballroom at the Regent Theatre in Melbourne. The new inductees are: Norman Ware (Footscray), Jack Sheedy (East Fremantle/East Perth/South Melbourne), Ken Fraser (Essendon), Barry Round (Footscray/South Melbourne/Sydney), Don Scott (Hawthorn), Dale Weightman (Richmond), Greg Williams (Geelong/Sydney/Carlton) and Stephen Kernahan (Carlton). Ware, born on March 5, 1911, and winner of the 1941 Brownlow Medal, is the oldest of the group while Weightman, Williams and Kernahan represent a far more modern era.

Hall of Fame Legend Barrie Robran

(born on September 25, 1947)

Former South Australian champion, Barrie Robran, is the first Legend in the Australian Football Hall of Fame never to have played in the AFL/VFL.

The football stars of yesteryear came out in force for the 2001 inductions at a glittering function in Melbourne on May 21. Robran was overseas on induction night, but was clearly overwhelmed and humbled when interviewed later. He was well represented on the evening by his footballing sons, Matthew (Adelaide) and Jonathon (Essendon), plus SA League icons Neil Kerley and Bob Hammond, who described Robran as the best footballer SA has produced. Robran played 201 games for North Adelaide, was captain from 1974 to 1977, represented SA 17 times, won three Magarey Medals (1968, 1970, 1973) and six North Adelaide best and fairest awards. He had a preference for centre half-forward, but could play anywhere. Former South Australian and Geelong player and ABC commentator Dwayne Russell summed him up: "If there was one universal memory of Robran's halcyon days, it is the way he would drift across the front of packs or climb high over backs to mark spectacularly, land like a cat and deliver, literally seconds ahead of those who had barely thought of a response ..."

INDUCTEES: Norm Ware, Ken Fraser, Barry Round, Stephen Kernahan, Dale Weightman, Jack Sheedy, Greg Williams and Don Scott all joined the Australian Football Hall of Fame in 2001.

Hall of Fame Inductees

Norman Ware

(born on March 5, 1911)

At 90, former Footscray captain-coach and ruckman Norman Ware was the oldest of the 2001 inductees. In 1941, he became the first Footscray player to win a Brownlow Medal and at the time he was also the oldest, aged 30.

He remains the only captain-coach to have won the medal. Allan Hopkins is now listed as Footscray's first winner in 1930, but he didn't receive the recognition or a medal until 1989. Hopkins was beaten on a countback in 1930, but retrospectively received a medal after the League revised the rules relating to those beaten on a countback. Ware, from Sale in the Gippsland area, played 200 games for the Bulldogs (1932-1942, 1944-1946). He was captain-coach in 1941 and 1942 and won five best and fairest awards.

Jack Sheedy

(born on September 28, 1926)

Jack Sheedy is a West Australian footballing icon, but the tough and aggressive rover did play eight games for South Melbourne as a 17-year-old while based in Melbourne in 1944 for navy training. He had a wonderful career in WA, playing 210 games with East Fremantle and 122 with East Perth where he was captain from 1956 to 1962. He also coached East Perth from 1956 to 1964 and in 1969 for three premierships from seven grand finals. At East Fremantle, he was coach in 1949 and 1952 and captain in 1949, 1950, 1952 and 1955. He won four best and fairest awards with East Fremantle, coached WA 10 times, played in 23 state representative games and in 2000 was selected in WA's Team of the Century. He had a reputation as one of the game's most astute on-field leaders and coaches.

Ken Fraser

(born on February 12, 1940)

Ken Fraser was a brilliant and fair centre half-forward who played with Essendon in a leading era for the club in the late 1950s and 1960s. He played 198 games, captained the club, played in two premiership sides (1962 and 1965), won two best and fairest awards and captained Victoria. He has also seen son Mark play

League football (65 games for Essendon and 45 for Collingwood) and another son, Darren, play reserve grade football for Collingwood and Essendon and one Ansett Cup game with Port Adelaide. Fraser started with Essendon in 1958 at the same time as his close mate, Ron Evans. Both were recruited from Essendon Baptist-St John district side. They soon filled the two forward positions at Essendon – Fraser at centre half-forward and Evans at full-forward. Fraser was captain of the 1965 premiership side and was still captain when the side played in the 1968 Grand Final. Injury forced him to miss that game and Essendon lost narrowly.

Barry Round

(born on January 26, 1950)

Barry Round was the face of Australian Football in Sydney when South Melbourne moved to the Harbour City in 1982 to become the Sydney Swans. The big ruckman was the last captain of South Melbourne and the first captain of the Sydney Swans and was an enormously popular figure with the Sydney crowds. Round started his League career with Footscray in 1969 in the twilight of the late and great Ted Whitten's career. After 135 games, he moved to South Melbourne in 1976 (for another 193 games and a grand total of 328) and in 1980, he took over the captaincy. In 1981, Round and long-time friend Bernie Quinlan each won a Brownlow Medal. It was a historic year – the first time the VFL had presented more than one medal in a season after the abolition of the countback system. Round and Quinlan had both come from the Victorian country centre of Gippsland and both had played together at Footscray, but by 1981 Quinlan was at Fitzroy. Round was a tireless ruckman who later became captain-coach of Williamstown where he won the VFA's Liston Trophy.

Dale Weightman

(born on October 3, 1959)

Dale Weightman was so small (170cm, 69kg) in the hurly burly of VFL football that they called him 'The Flea.' But he was tough and courageous and his size was no handicap as he became one of Richmond's most celebrated players. He played 274 games, kicked 345 goals, captained the club, played in a premiership side (1980), won two best and fairest awards, captained Victoria, won two E.J. Whitten Medals, a Simpson Medal and a Tassie Medal. Weightman was recruited from Mildura Imperials, in the far north-west of Victoria, and played his first senior game in 1978 – and scored a goal with his first kick – and his last in 1993. He later played and coached in Tasmania and then went on to Finley, in country NSW. His father, Brian, was a long-time country footballer and encouraged his son to play football from an early age. Dale says that Brian and former Richmond under-19s coach Don Davenport had the biggest influence on his career.

Stephen Kernahan

(born on September 1, 1963)

Stephen Kernahan made his mark as a match-winning centre half-forward/full-forward in both South Australia and Victoria. In 1986, Carlton brought off a recruiting coup by seizing Kernahan (Glenelg) and another SA champion, Craig Bradley. 'Sticks' Kernahan went on to play 251 games for the Blues (1986-1997), kick 738 goals, play in the 1987 and 1995 premiership sides and captain the side in an AFL/VFL record 226 games from 1987 (only his second year at the club) to 1997. When Carlton named its Team of the Century last year, Kernahan was the centre half-forward and the captain. His great strength was his marking, his position play and his ability to involve his teammates while bringing down opposition defences. He represented SA in 13 state games, won two Fos Williams Medals and was an All-Australian eight times. After retiring, he stayed at Carlton as an assistant/skills coach and acts as inspiration to budding big men at Optus Oval.

Don Scott

(born on December 20, 1947)

Don Scott was a tough, awkward, uncompromising Hawthorn captain in a wonderful era. He took his orders for many seasons from an equally tough and uncompromising coach in John Kennedy. Not a natural footballer, Scott was the epitome of everything Kennedy liked in a player. He wasn't a pretty footballer, but he was quick for his size and he wasn't afraid to put his body into the heaviest of traffic. He was also brave, fierce and respected. His career stretched from 1967 to 1981 and during that period, Hawthorn won three premierships. Scott was captain of two of them (1976 and 1978) and played in 16 finals. His last Grand Final was in 1978 and he celebrated victory by booting the ball into the crowd. He spent his first 10 seasons under Kennedy, then four under David Parkin and one under Allan Jeans. Scott played 302 games, kicked 133 goals, won the 1973 club best and fairest award and played for Victoria four times. Scott was part of a following division, with Michael Tuck and Leigh Matthews, all of whom are now in the Hall of Fame, that dominated football for almost a decade.

Greg Williams

(born on September 30, 1963)

Greg Williams had a reputation as being a man of very few words – until he was inducted into the Australian Hall of Fame and stepped on to the Plaza Ballroom stage. He proceeded to tell of his battle to win a place in AFL football and his journey through the game. His humorous and very honest speech evoked a rousing reception. Williams failed in his first attempt to play at Carlton, but he persisted, went to Geelong and so started an incredible 14-season career. He was a champion centreman and a master of the handball and what he lacked in leg speed, he made up for in razor-sharp cunning and a freakish ability to read of the play. He was also a superbly skilful player who was perfectly adept on both sides of the body. Williams played 34 games for Geelong, 107 for Sydney (where he won a Brownlow Medal) and 109 games for Carlton (where he won a second Brownlow). He was the benchmark of football excellence and won best and fairest awards at Geelong and Carlton, was an All-Australian eight times (including captain in 1994) and represented Victoria nine times.

Jack Titus Award 2001

Wes Lofts

A Carlton stalwart since his teenage days, Wes Lofts, 59, joined the Blues as a young hopeful set on earning a senior guernsey. In 1960, aged 17, he achieved his goal. Well before he had played the last of his 167 games in 1970, the Carlton No. 20 was known throughout the VFL. Lofts was an uncompromising full-back and had some particularly memorable clashes with great Hawthorn full-forward Peter Hudson. Lofts quickly worked his way up through the Carlton ranks and climbed just as quickly in the business world. He played in the 1968 premiership side, but missed a place in the 1970 title team when vice-captain to John Nicholls. After retiring as a player, Lofts became a power-broker at the club and was chairman of selectors for many years. His presence in the boardroom has been imposing and reminiscent of his on-field efforts. Lofts has been dedicated to the Blues since catching the tram from Coburg to the then Princes Park to try his luck in the big time. At his testimonial dinner in 1971, the late Sir Robert Menzies (a former Prime Minister and Carlton No. 1 ticket-holder) presented Lofts with a plaque set with seven pennies – the price of that tram ride.

The late Jack Titus was a champion Richmond forward who kicked 970 goals from 1926 to 1943. He played 294 games and for many years held the consecutive games record with 204. Titus was also a committeeman and senior coach at Richmond. The award is presented annually in recognition of outstanding service to football.

AFL welcomes first female Life Member

A total of nine current and former administrators, players, coaches and umpires, including the first woman, were made AFL Life Members in 2001 after the AFL Commission approved the selections of the Life Membership recommendation committee. The new Life Members recommended by the committee are Jill Lindsay, Stephen Kernahan and Robert DiPierdomenico; David Howlett, Chris Mitchell, Mick Martyn, Wayne Schwass, Garry Hocking, and Danny Frawley were selected as 300-game players, coaches or umpires.

JILL LINDSAY

Lindsay creates history by being the first woman inducted as a life member of the AFL/VFL. AFL Chief Executive Officer Wayne Jackson said: "Jill has led the way for women in the game and life membership is fitting testimony to the contribution she has made." Lindsay started at the VFL in 1970 as an office clerk when the late Eric McCutchan was the VFL chief and worked with the late Jack Hamilton, Allen Aylett, Ross Oakley, the late Alan Schwab, Ian Collins and, now, Jackson and Andrew Demetriou. Lindsay has worked as VFL Park match-day supervisor, membership coordinator and finals series coordinator and as the VFL's membership manager. Since 1991, she has been AFL ground operations manager.

STEPHEN KERNAHAN

The former key forward and Carlton premiership captain was a 136-game champion with Glenelg in South Australia before he moved interstate in 1986. By 1987, he was club captain, a post he held until he retired in 1997. He captained the Blues in a League record 226 games and kicked a club record 738 goals. Kernahan captained Carlton to premierships in 1987 and 1985 and won three best and fairests at each of Carlton and Glenelg. He was an All-Australian seven times and serves on Carlton's coaching panel.

LIFE MEMBERS: Stephen Kernahan, Robert DiPierdomenico and Jill Lindsay are congratulated by AFL Chief Executive Officer Wayne Jackson.

ROBERT DIPIERDOMENICO

The rugged wingman tallied 240 premiership season games for Hawthorn from 1975 to 1991 and then kept his name in the limelight as a 'boundary rider' at AFL games. 'Dipper,' as he is widely known, played during a golden era at Hawthorn and was a member of premiership sides in 1978, 1983, 1986, 1988 and 1989. In 1986, he also won the Brownlow Medal. DiPierdomenico was an All-Australian three times and has been one of the characters of football, both on and off the field. Who will forget his courageous effort when seriously injured in the 1989 Grand Final?

DAVID HOWLETT

Howlett retired after round 22, 2001, after umpiring 302 AFL/VFL games. He officiated in the Essendon and District Football League for five years before joining the VFL in 1982 and umpiring two games late in the season. He was named All-Australian umpire in 1994 and umpired the 1994 Grand Final along with Denis Rich and Bryan

Sheehan. Howlett umpired 14 finals – one Grand Final, three preliminary finals, four semi-finals, five qualifying and one elimination final – and three State of Origin matches.

CHRIS MITCHELL

In round one, 2001, Mitchell became the eighth field umpire to reach 300 games and by season's end, he had 319 games – the fourth highest tally in League history. He umpired in the Footscray District League before joining the VFL cadet squad in 1979 and umpiring his first senior VFL game in 1985. He has officiated in 14 finals – two preliminary, four semi, six qualifying and two elimination finals – the first in 1989, five State of Origin games and in two International Rules Series.

MICHAEL MARTYN

By the end of 2001, the tough Kangaroos full-back had put together 301 games, comprising 268 premiership season matches, 31 pre-season and two State of Origin games. Martyn started as a full-forward and in 1986 won the VFL under-19s goalkicking with 96. But he was to make his mark as a full-back in a senior career that started in 1988 and has seen him play in the 1996 and 1999 premiership sides. He also played in pre-season premiership teams in 1995 and 1998, winning the Michael Tuck Medal in 1995, and is a dual club best and fairest winner.

WAYNE SCHWASS

Sydney's midfielder reached 300 games in 2001 – 273 with the Kangaroos and Sydney, plus 26 pre-season and three State of Origin games. His senior career started in 1988 with North Melbourne where he played 194 premiership season games until the end of 1997. He then headed to Sydney and is still playing with the Swans. Schwass won successive best and fairest awards at North (1994, 1995) and played in the Roos' 1996 premiership side. In 1999, he won Sydney's best and fairest and a place on the wing in the All-Australian team.

GARRY HOCKING

The Geelong on-baller retired after the 2001 season with 301 games. Hocking had played 274 premiership season matches, 19 pre-season and eight State of Origin games. He is third on Geelong's all-time games list, behind Ian Nankervis (325 premiership games) and John 'Sam' Newman (300). Hocking never played in a premiership side though he played in Grand Finals in 1989, 1992, 1994 and 1995. He won a club record four club best and fairest awards and was second twice. He was equal second in the Brownlow Medal in 1993 (when ineligible) and third in 1991, 1994 and 1995. He gained All-Australian selection in 1991, 1993, 1994 and 1996.

DANNY FRAWLEY

The current Richmond coach played 240 premiership season games and 12 pre-season matches with St Kilda, 11 State of Origin and six international matches. His tally swelled to more than 300 with the inclusion of his games as coach – 47 premiership season and six pre-season games to the end of 2001. Frawley, a best and fairest winner, was an excellent full-back in a career that stretched from 1984 to 1995. He captained the team in 177 games, which makes him the fifth longest-serving skipper in League history. In 2001, he coached Richmond to a preliminary final.
